WORLD-WIDE LOWERING OF TRAFFIC WALLS

ROOSEVELT AND SENATOR HULL DRAFT DETAILS

TALK OF PRELIMINARY WAR DEBT MORATORIUM

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

WARM SPRINGS, GEORGIA, February 2.
PRESIDENT-ELECT ROOSEVELT and Senator Hull are reported to have drafted details of a plan for world-wide lowering of tariff walls and stabilization of currencies in exchange for the remittance of war debts.

PLAN BEING CAREFULLY SHIELDED

WARM SPRINGS, Feb. 2.
Mr. Roosevelt is shielding his plan most carefully though it is understood he discussed it with Mr. Walter Lippman and Professor Mokey.

The crux of the question appears to be that tariffs cannot be lowered until foreign currencies are stabilized, both requiring international action which is possible at the Economic Conference and will take time to come into operation. For this reason Mr. Roosevelt's advisers are talking of a preliminary war debt moratorium for an unexpected period. Meanwhile, it is reported, Mr. Hull has accepted the Secretary of State in the new administration.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to comment on Mr. Neville Chamberlain's speech to the Association of American Newspapers. Correspondents yesterday, when he made it clear that Britain had little to offer the United States, but Mr.
Roosevelt, according to reports from Washington, said that if Britain is unwilling to discuss other questions in connection with debt revision we will have no alternative but to stand by the debt settlement already made.

JAPANESE CONTROL TAIHEIHO

LATEST REPORT FROM HARBIN

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

PEIPING, Feb. 2.
A MESSAGE from Harbin states that the Japanese now fully control Taiheih, opposite to Blagoveshchensk. They also are building an aerodrome at Taiheih.

JAPANESE DRIVE ON JEHOL

MAY COMMENCE AT ANY MOMENT

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

PEIPING, Feb. 2.
FEARS that the long heralded drive on Jehol are about to commence are felt here on receipt of reports from reliable sources from Mukden that heavy Japanese troop movements are going on down the Peiping-Mukden Railway towards Chinchow.

Mukden messages express the belief that the Japanese offensive will begin within a few days, aiming at the complete subjugation of Jehol, and bringing it into the territory of Manchukuo. The expected drive, if started, may not be easily completed as Chinese troops now at Jehol are of considerable numbers and are well established in a country offering plenty of natural defences.

On the other hand, the Japanese have the incomparable aid of aircraft against which the Chinese troops are without defence.

Chinese sources state that Japanese planes appeared over Jehol City yesterday morning reconnoitring for several minutes. They then flew off to the south-east. No bombs were dropped.

BRITAIN'S POLICY IN MANCHURIA

[REUTERS WIRELESS SERVICE]

Japan in Manchuria in return for a free hand for Britain in Tibet.

The statement adds that a "free hand" in Tibet is not and never has been the ambition of His Majesty's Government of the United Kingdom or of the Government of India, and His Majesty's Government's attitude in regard to the Sino-Japanese dispute is not influenced in any way by considerations affecting Tibet.

"Sir John Simon made it quite plain at Geneva that in the event of the conciliation failing, His Majesty's Government will be prepared to see the Lytton Report adopted," the statement concludes.

STILL HOPE FOR CONCILIATION

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

RUGBY, Feb. 1.
Although the Committee of Nineteen, appointed by the League of Nations Assembly to endeavour to effect a settlement of the Sino-Japanese dispute, under Article 15, Paragraph 2, of the Covenant of the League, has failed in its efforts, and is now engaged in preparation of a report for the Assembly, in accordance with Paragraph 4 of the same Article, the view taken at Geneva is that conciliation efforts are not precluded until such report is actually presented.

Tokyo Press reports state that as a result of a further review of the situation, the Japanese delegate at Geneva, Mr. Matsukata, has now been instructed to present final minimum demands on the Manchurian question.

CHINA MAY WITHDRAW FROM LEAGUE

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

NANKING, Feb. 2.
While all Chinese circles are eagerly awaiting the League's decision regarding the question of Manchukuo, interest has been aroused by a report issued by the official Central News Agency stating certain influential quarters maintain that China should withdraw from the League if it fails to declare itself against the recognition of Manchukuo.

The same Agency categorically states that unless the Assembly report contains a definite declaration of non-recognition of Manchukuo, China will be obliged to withdraw from the League. It is pointed out that the possibility of China's withdrawing from the League has been mentioned by the high command of the Chinese Government places the importance of the question at the head of news columns.

PROPOSED CHEMICAL PLANT

SINO-BRITISH ENTERPRISE AT NANKING

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

NANKING, Feb. 2.
A REPRESENTATIVE of British chemical interests is now here discussing with the Ministry of Industry details regarding a proposed ammonia-sulphate plant which will be set up as a Sino-British joint enterprise.

THE LEG THEORY CONTROVERSY

M.C.C.'S LATEST DEMAND

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

CANBERRA, Feb. 2.
THE latest development of the leg theory controversy is that the M.C.C. has invoked the aid of the British Government representative in Australia to ask the Board of Control to withdraw the word unparliamentary contained in their cable to the M.C.C. The team felt the publication of the word left a personal stigma and are distressed at entering the fourth Test match with the stigma unremoved.

ANGLO-PERSIAN OIL DISPUTE

AGREEMENT REACHED AT GENEVA

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

GENEVA, Feb. 2.
M. BENEZ' mediatory efforts in the Anglo-Persian Oil dispute have resulted in an agreement on principle between the representatives of the two parties at Geneva for the resumption of direct negotiations for the renewal of the D'Amoy concession.

Until the agreement is confirmed by the British and Persian Governments, however, no official statement can be issued.
It is provisionally arranged for the matter to come up at the last sitting of the League Council on Friday afternoon.

Sign of Manchukuo, regarding it as a pivotal point on which the Chinese Government will decide its final attitude to the League.

Official quarters hold the view that the failure of the League explicitly to declare itself against recognition of Manchukuo not only defeats one of China's vital considerations, but contradicts the Assembly Resolution of March 11, 1925.

Hence it is generally believed that the discussions of the League at Geneva during the next few days will determine the Chinese attitude to the League.
Chinese papers are agreed in asserting the League's hesitancy regarding the Manchukuo question to Sir John Simon's "manipulations" at Geneva.

WINTER CLOTHES ARE BRIGHT IN COLOUR

SHOES FOR PARTIES

That old adage about well-groomed heads and well-shod feet and how they will make up for many deficiencies in the rest of the attire still holds good. Indeed, these details are more important than ever, because the majority of women have become so much more particular about hair and hats that any carelessness becomes noticeable in the wrong way.

All Sorts of Fittings.
Shoe manufacturers of to-day can be congratulated in very many instances. It is still difficult to find fittings for excessively slender heels, but not, as it used to be, impossible. The owners of normal feet can find almost anything they want, in all sorts of fittings.

Coloured shoes are more rarely seen in the day time as compared with the summer months. Black and several tones of brown have taken their place. Although some afternoon models are still cut in very open shapes, they are entirely unsuitable for winter weather, and, therefore, much less attractive than the simpler types which cover the foot more adequately.

Black shoes, of course, are for black clothes and sometimes for grey ones. Brown, especially the dark nigger or very deep russet, is better with most colours, including many cases grey.

The pleasant appearance and long life of most reptile skins ensure their continued use for both town and country shoes; calf, Russia leather, crocodile, and in some cases pigskin are used for country or country-and-town shoes.

For the evening there are always crepe-de-Chine and satin. The first of these tends to make the foot look smaller, for the same reason that a dull surfaced dress material is more slenderising than a shiny one.

Velvet, so long confined to mules and bed-room slippers, is also making its appearance with evening dresses, very reasonably when there are gloves to match.

The majority of good evening frocks are happiest with shoes to match—in an open sandal shape if the foot is well shaped and well looked after and the stocking very fine, in a court shape or modified sandal if the foot is not all that it might be.

Very open shoes (like very open fish-net stockings) are positively brutal to even minor deficiencies.

Beige Returns

Almost every woman, whatever her type, will be glad to know that printed chiffons are showing up again after their brief season of disfavour. Beige seems to be coming into favour again which is another tendency which is sure to please. Beige suits are quite the latest fashion.

POPULARITY — ITS SECRET

MUCH has been written about the clinging type of girl, the highbrow girl; but what type of girl is really popular?

Well, of course, some will say, it is a question of individual taste; but really in most things men are very much alike.

First and foremost, a man does like to be proud of the appearance of the woman he takes to the theatre or restaurant or wherever they are going. And second, he likes to be entertained.

I don't mean a studied campaign of scintillating wit or a perfect shower of humorous remarks in and out of season, but a subtle combination of appreciation and gentle flattery, a mental deferring, as it were, to him, the male, for the art of the evening's entertainment.

A man likes to be made to feel he is a good fellow. After all, there is no one in the world who is not secretly susceptible to the finer forms of flattery, and the effect of an appreciative companion is like a good dinner—a man feels contented, at peace with the world, and what is most important, desirous of repeating the performance.

Next, of course, comes the art of listening. This is, unfortunately, rather rare; most women like to talk too much about themselves.

Let the man do the talking, and by a few pertinent questions lead him to speak of those things which interest him most. After once or twice of this sort of thing he will be so interested in you that he will want to talk about you entirely.

Supposing you are going to a "dinner," and you are asked to choose, don't make the fatal mistake of saying, "I don't mind." Nothing is more damning; it implies an almost total carelessness. Decide yourself, beforehand, where you would like to go, and tell your

This deliciously cosy looking coat is made of camel's hair wool dyed bottle green. The jaunty scarf in flame and orange not only adds a warm colour note, but serves to keep out the coldest blast.

PARIS NOTES FOR THE WHITE FLARE

The latest hairdressing whim to hit Paris is the "White Flare in the hair" fashion. Artificial flares are produced by means of a new Shampoo. Besides the softly combed flare of the waved head there are original flares which appear to grow from the nape of the neck and show in the chignon of curls, or else, starting at the crown continue down into a fringe over the eyes.

ECONOMISE WITH A PARISIAN AIR

Different coloured velvet belts such as Patou suggests, which are rather wide and do not indicate where the line is going to place the waist line in the spring, will revive a half worn white gown. Almost any vivid colour looks well on white, but vivid red is striking with a little capelet to match. Tulle can be substituted for velvet. Pink tulle in this capelet form is good over black gowns.

business man and may prefer something quite different, a quiet, reposeful companion who can somehow miraculously interpret his moods. The most popular and successful cavalier. Whether or not he knows the place, he will probably like it immensely just because you have saved him the bother of deciding. Don't talk to fill up a pause. If you have nothing to say, remain silent; nothing is worse than a futile remark.

Your escort will admire you much more if you are silent at times; it will give him time to study your profile.

Always dress to suit your mood if possible. If you are feeling playful and want to show your "And flowers: it will make a great difference to your success. If, perhaps, you are feeling quieter, wear something in keeping. Also it is well to discover his taste in moods. This must be done, of course, by a process of psychic intuition. He may be a successful business man, who after a heavy day's work likes to be entertained by a bright, amusing companion. On the other hand, he may not be a successful

THE STAND-BY DRESS TWO COLOUR SCHEMES

The stand-by dress must, by its very nature, not be extreme. As a rule it is of wool, and it should serve in the rain as well as in the house. Jerseys, crepes, ribbed materials, materials with a grain like moss stitch, are all pressed into the service of the stand-by dress. Jersey is popular as the fit makes it a pleasant substance for the tight skirt and it is also light for walking. While the lower waist is seen here and there, woollen dresses still tend to be belted at the natural waist or even a shade higher. A harlequin or plaid jersey may be used for the dress top, in perhaps green and red, with plain cuffs and collar of the jersey of the skirt.

Patou uses jersey a good deal for a kind of pinafore frock. The pinafore part of the dress may be made of brown jersey, with shoulders that suggest the epaulette and with a deep, square neck with crossed straps which are repeated low down on the jersey sleeve in yellow. A leather belt finishes this. While a velvet dress is never a stand-by, the two-colour scheme has also extended itself to this form of dress. With black velvet skirts long tunic are worn in, perhaps, chateaux crepe de Chine, and edged with black fox. A three-quarter black velvet coat covers these and takes the fox edging itself as a trimming. The sheath form of dress for every day is also carried out in two colours. The sheath is cut to give a corselet effect in black wool, with a point rising rather high in front like the bib of an apron. The top of this corselet effect is seamed and joined to give the effect of a Swiss belt without the lower point.

A method of suggesting a whole frock by means of what is almost a suit is to have a tweed skirt and with this wear a plain jersey sleeveless blouse which ends in a deep point back and front, like a fencing jacket, but deeper. Over this is worn a little jacket of the tweed, made on the same lines, but open at the neck and four or five inches shorter so that the plain

NEW SPRING HATS

THE COWBOY-FORAGE CAP

The latest cowboy-forage cap attempts at the Toreador shapes, worn straight or poised at a very sudden angle are likely to present difficulties in the wild winds of early Spring. The Torpador is another edition of the more elongated pork-pie shape that we had in the Autumn, with the brim turned up with contrasting fabric or fur. It will be developed in a lace straw and felt mixture which, if worn well on the side, with the turn-up brim wide enough to shade the face, should be rather attractive. The boat-shape of Victorian days is also predicted. This is a newer attempt to foist the straight line started with the Victorian toque or turban—a forward tilt, and a back trimming. This will be smart for later spring, as the shade to the eyes is pleasant and a cluster of fruit and flowers is so graceful mixed with the shorter curls. Coiffure changes keep up with the rapidity of new millinery styles, and seem to be again veering round to the neat and shorter shingle. If so there is not much scope for hat brims of even medium size.

Fashion's Accessories

Hula necklaces of masses of beads in graduated sizes are one of the season's novelties. Dyed to match the gown exactly, they take the place of feather or flower trimming. Wool beads in necklaces to tone with sports suits give a very chic finish to an otherwise ordinary suit. For evening wear, pearls are again very fashionable and so are delicately tinted crystals. Then there is the elbow bracelet made of flowers or of chiffon.

Umbrella handles are changing, as also are the lengths. Covers take their tone from the walking suit or coat and hook and crook handles have returned in the case of the walking stick length, although the "stumpy" umbrellas maintain handles more in keeping with their lines.

jersey shows below it and makes a border. The open neck of the tweed also displays the turned down collar of the jersey and the chromium clip that fastens it. Chromium is of great value on woollen dresses, as it throws up the colour of the wool and gives it point.

ONGLES A LA CHINOISE

Imitation finger nails come of course from Paris. Long pointed gold and silver imitation nails, such as any Mandarin of the best Chinese musical comedy type might envy, are offered for clipping on to the fingers. One of two waxes have already been seen with eyes.

London Fashion Notes Our air-mail letter to women

London January 17th

Foretaste of Summer

London, Jan. 9. Amongst the flower patterned fabrics that will be popular for summer dresses, were two frocks worn by Miss Ellis Jeffreys in "Fresh Fields" at the Criterion Theatre. One—a crinkled crepe foulard patterned with red azaleas and black stalks on a white ground, with long tight sleeves tied at the wrist with red ribbons; the frock material being gathered at the waist. Another red and white crinkled crepe dress, patterned geometrically, was a composition belt ornament that resembles a row of commas. Then there is a brown and white crepe patterned like a ponskin and provided with an "ostler" belt.

The use of contrasting materials continues. A dress of plain jersey in a pale shade, for instance, is shown with a short coat of figured cloth or ermine-velvet in black, with cap to tone. A similar idea is worked into one of the early year's models, the sleeves and neck-decorations being of fanciful fabric, worn with a perfectly plain face-cloth frock. Then comes a variety of patterned materials, which will soon take the place of fur.

The very exclusive dresses are demanding fur or velvet linings to plain cloth coats with velvet collars.

White caracul often is used to trim a white figured cloth cape, as well as the coat-frock beneath; many of the prettiest capes can be worn either way-back or front-both for day and evening, in cloth or velvet.

The Vogue for Violet

A very dark violet tone has already been used a great deal this season and now parma violet is finding favour. Also there is a beautiful new parma shade with a tinge of red which is much easier to wear than the true parma which is rather trying for most people.

Knitted Clothes

Knitted clothes are in many cases indistinguishable, except after close examination from woven fabrics; they are trimly tailored and exceedingly smart. Cardigan suits in the new shadow wool mixtures are both novel and chic. The skirt is slightly flared, and the cardigan fastened with flat chromium-plated buttons. Then there is the jumper in bramble-yarn, with a double diamond design in front and stripes on the sleeves of artificial silk in contrasting tones, and pullovers in softest cashmere wool.

Spring Suits and Accessories

Day fashions now show a return to simple tailoring. Apart from plain and twilled suitings, coats and jackets will become looser and straighter, swinging from the shoulder. Blouses worn with tailor-made suits are likely to be of bright colours such as yellow, orange or bright green when the suits are of neutral shades, and with navy blue chalky pastel colours are large bows of tulle and organdie make a spring-like finish to collarless coats. Scarves continue to be used on dresses and coats. Many are buttoned on or fixed with a big clip and may be adjusted in different ways. Wide swathes of softly crushed materials with long ends tied in a loose bow are used on silk afternoon dresses, and look well in black crepe satin on pastel tones or in chalky shades of pink and blue on black. Soft swathes with short ends knotted in bright wools are used on sports dresses, or bows of black and white plaid braid twisted several times round the waist and finished with fringed ends.

Velvet Collars

Coat collars of velvet are a newer and of a more tailored aspect than fur, and they give a real change in their neat flatness. The velvet collar is a vogue that will advance with the Spring. It is a becoming finish to cloth and tweed. Some of the corduroy and velvet coats are simply finished with a low stitched collar band of their own fabric.

Lingerie

Good frocks must be worn over correctly cut lingerie. The set of to-day comprises nightdress and matching breakfast dressing jacket. Knickers and chemise make another set, with a petticoat slip that does not match the set, but matches the frock. Knickers and slips are out on the cross so that they stretch to fit like a glove and do not drag. Locknit is used for sports underwear.

The short fur capes that we have been wearing this winter are very smart indeed, and so cosy that one hopes they will continue in fashion next year. In the meanwhile if you have a fur coat which is getting past its work why not have the good parts made into a cape for spring wear.

Jersey and Crinkled Wool

For sports and morning wear the Chanel jerseys are of particular interest. There is a whole range of tweed jerseys in neutral mixtures of black and white, brown and white, dark blue and white, in a variety of speckly designs that are exceedingly smart. The greatest novelty is a new fabric of linen and silk, a combination that has not hitherto been used, and which will replace organdie for the summer. Of ephemeral lightness, this fabric is made in the beige of natural linen thread, with tiny shell-like pen and ink designs in red, green, blue or brown and the silk in the fabric gives it a lovely sheen.

Hats

Hats are now coming into their own, after the long hairings that caps with smartness and piquancy as their chief assets have had. These have particularly charming brim lines for the Spring, and the clever tilt over the right eye arrests attention.

NOVEL JEWEL FASHIONS

New Year fashions in jewels reveal an increasing demand for pieces set with round-cut brilliants. This is a distinct departure from the ultra-modern designs, which admit only of baguette, baton, or square-cut stones.

The effect is to add fire, as it were, to the white-diamond brilliance of the diamond.

Among original pieces recently introduced is a bracelet of ribbon-like flexibility, the central ornament of which consists of a row of small diamonds set in a row.

ly described—an ordinary metal grip to keep recalcitrant locks in place. The grip, however, can also be used as a lapel brooch or a corsage brooch without alteration of any kind; and when the owner has tired of these manifold uses the jeweller can remove the grip portion and replace it by a pair of small diamonds set in a row.

More novel of the general type is a necklace of pearls and diamonds, the pearls being set in a row and the diamonds in a row, the pearls being set in a row and the diamonds in a row.

ROUND THE TOWN

FINAL SALES

Sales are being held in the following shops—

Dolly Vardon Hat Shop
Whiteaway Laidlaw's
Lane, Crawford's (ladies shoes)
Felix Hat Shop
Eve
Salon des Modes.

Gordon's have just received their Raines shoes, not of velvet as was expected but in satin and crepe de chine.

They come in black, brown and white and are intended for smart afternoon or evening wear. I was interested to see that several pairs are trimmed according to the very latest whim of Madame la Mode with broderie anglaise. This is particularly effective on the darker colours for evening wear, while on white one feels that the method of trimming suggests that the shoes be worn with a white afternoon ensemble rather than with evening dress.

The combination of the shiny and mat surfaces is very smart and tends to make the foot look small and neat. The shapes are mostly court or a simple one bar shoe cut right out at the side.

Whiteaway's have some wonderful bargains for the last days of the Sale especially in the household furnishing department. Linens, cretonnes and enamel ware should certainly be looked at—and purchased.

Lane, Crawford's are showing in the Ladies' Salon, some delightful new frocks and hats for the races. Mercifully of warm and fairly heavy silk these dresses are much more suitable for our race season than the usual shivery lace and georgette. Two colour effects are very noticeable, and the line is always semi-tailored with the interest focused on the shoulders.

The newest hats are most fascinating turban shapes of a sort of fabric straw as soft as the crepe de chine with which it is often allied. By the way sandal shoes for $6.35 a pair should be investigated.

The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop.

Sale is drawing to a close, and there are some final bargains at really wonderfully low prices. Don't lose this opportunity of getting a couple more hats and a spring suit.

Felix.

There are some amazingly good bargains in the sale at the Felix Hat Shop. I believe that the sale is only continuing for a few days more so that it would be as well to look in to-day or to-morrow at the latest.

Now for some of the good things. There are hats from $3, those at $5 are absolutely fresh and worth four times as much. A number of jumper suits are reduced to prices ranging from $15 and there are among them some which about originally marked at round about $50. Evening frocks run from about $35. There are some really lovely dinner frocks in this class and some delightful evening gowns of heavy silk which only came in a few weeks ago marked in the region of $50.

I saw a couple of charming afternoon frocks in black and white both of which were much marked down. Near one was an adorable little hat for $15. The dress, I believe, was $75, so for under a hundred you could get a really smart afternoon outfit which would carry you right through the spring.

About Beauty

NO more trouble need be experienced when applying cosmetic to the eyes if a new little gadget is employed. This prevents the skin from being discoloured by the brush when the eyelashes are being touched up. Something quite new and really useful.

Eyebrows can be easily and painlessly shaped with a new tweezer, which works automatically. It is merely pressed upon the skin, and it grips and removes the hair in one movement. A real boon to the woman who performs this delicate operation herself.

A beauty ray has been invented by a Berlin scientist, who claims that he has discovered the only real method of rejuvenation. The rays are emitted and are used to drive impurities into the tissues of the face and neck so that they regain their youthful contours.

This may mean a revolution in beauty culture one day.

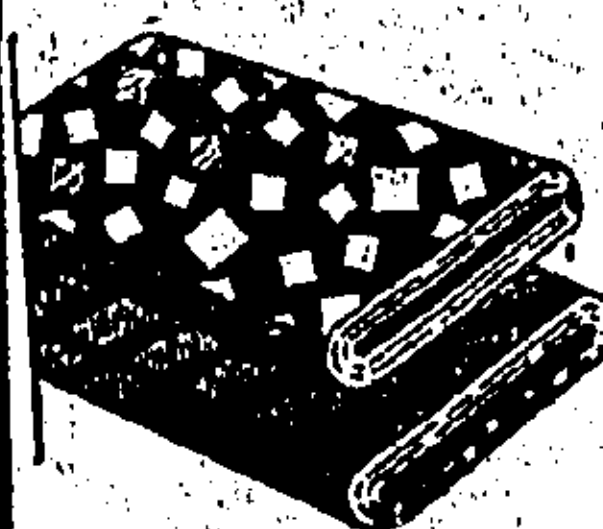

There is something you need for each hour of the day at real bargain prices at

What then of the remedy, and of the future? A year ago the best service that Western Europe could have performed would have been
the realistic encouragement of a direct accommodation between China and Japan. To-day that expedient is more difficult, but even more necessary. Moral proclamations against Japan are useless;
worse, than useless, they are provocative, and can have no other effect
than to confirm Japan in obstinacy.
League of Nations sanctions are totally impracticable. There is nothing to be done except simply to recognise that Japan, right or wrong, can do what she will; and
to concentrate upon an attempt to dissuade her from piercing the Great Wall. We must resolutely refuse to recognise Manchukuo.
The great qualities of the Japanese people may in the end respond to reason, but may be blinded by abuse. If Japan were now to concede the crowning blow, the inevitable result, as all history
teaches, would be the certain doom
of Japan herself.

REALITIES OF THE FAR EAST

CHINA AND JAPAN

TIME AND JUDGMENT

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, Jan. 17.
Whatever view be taken in Western Europe of the situation that has developed along the Great Wall of China, the nature of that situation itself is clear beyond misunderstanding. Japan has determined to eliminate from Manchuria every trace of Chinese authority; has decided that Jehol must be included within Manchuria in that sense; and is bent upon taking the present opportunity for the full achievement of her deliberate object. There is no longer any comfort, nor any sense, in distinguishing between the military and the political authorities in Japan. It is clear that the weight of Japanese power is concentrated upon the consolidation of Japanese authority on the mainland from Korea, to the Great Wall.

That is the essential fact, and it must be faced. It is the most formidable, the most dangerous fact in the world to-day. Indeed, it is impossible for realistic minds to feel any conviction that the Japanese objective will continue to be bounded by the Wall itself. Already Japan has gone too far. Will she go even further?

Shanhaiwan is already under full Japanese control. The most thorough measures are being taken at every point along the Wall to prevent the re-entry of Chinese forces.
Every crevice, as it were, is blocked. The Republic of Manchukuo encompasses within its self-dictated borders all four of the former Chinese extra-mural provinces.
Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang is marked down, in the Japanese plan, for total elimination as a factor in Northern China. Let there be no misapprehension of the symbolic nature of Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang to Japanese eyes. He is, moreover, the personal object of intense Japanese hatred. If he organises his headquarters at Peking, the Japanese forces there can, be no manner of doubt, will drive at Peking.

In short, we have reached the historic pass where a powerful Japan, a weak China, and the commonly helpless Foreign Powers have together created a temptation and an opportunity for Japanese expansion over the mainland. There is little doubt that the opportunity has been deliberately chosen.
Tokyo is aware that Great Britain, Russia, the United States, and Germany are all in their several present circumstances incapable of resistance. If the opportunity were not taken now, it is the clear and general calculation of those who direct Japanese policy that it would have to be taken twenty years hence when other circumstances might prevail.

To moralise is to waste emotion.
The Sino-Japanese problem is an old problem. So far as Manchuria proper is concerned, there is no doubt that Japan has been the victim of grave injustice, that for many years she behaved with commendable patience, and that proper diplomatic methods did not yield the satisfaction due to her. A chronic China, the lack of a Chinese Government competent either to protect Japanese interests or even to keep order in Manchuria, at last exasperated Japan into direct remedial action. As often happens in such cases, she has gone beyond her initial aim or desire, and has turned a reasonable cause into one that may, if further prosecuted, draw upon her the concentrated condemnation of the whole world.

What then of the remedy, and of the future? A year ago the best service that Western Europe could
have performed would have been
the realistic encouragement of a direct
accommodation between China and Japan. To-day that expedient is more difficult, but even more necessary. Moral proclamations against Japan are useless;
worse, than useless, they are provocative, and can have no other effect
than to confirm Japan in obstinacy.
League of Nations sanctions are totally impracticable. There is nothing to be done except simply
to recognise that Japan, right or wrong, can do what she will; and
to concentrate upon an attempt to dissuade her from piercing the Great Wall. We must resolutely
refuse to recognise Manchukuo.
The great qualities of the Japanese
people may in the end respond to reason, but may be blinded by abuse. If Japan were now to concede the crowning blow, the inevitable result, as all history
teaches, would be the certain doom
of Japan herself.

"LOOKING ON THE BRIGHT SIDE"

GRACIE FIELDS FILM COM-ING TO KING'S THEATRE

For real versatility it would be hard to beat Miss Gracie Fields.
She is admitted to be one of the finest comedienne on the variety stage; her numerous broadcasts are looked upon as the high-light of the wireless programmes; and the sale of her gramophone records is higher than any other artiste in Britain. To this wide field of entertainment she recently added the film—and her debut in this sphere, "Sally in our Alley," proved to be the most successful British picture ever produced.

At the King's Theatre next Sunday patrons will have Miss Gracie Fields' second picture, "Looking on the Bright Side," as the main attraction. This picture is said to give her even greater scope than "Sally in our Alley."
She sings five songs; she "gays"
her own singing; she clown's as only Gracie Fields can and in addition to this shows a surprising aptitude for dramatic acting. In fact the whole picture shows that the star thoroughly enjoyed making it.
Although quite capable of carrying the picture on her own shoulders, Miss Fields has the able support of Julius Rose, whose rich Hebrew humour is admirably suited to the part of Schultz, the play producer. This is the first screen appearance of this well-known artist.

Big parts are also played by Richard Dolman, in the role of the young song writer with whom Gracie is in love, and Wyn Richmond as a particularly obnoxious actress who is eventually well and truly put in her place in good round Lancashire phrases by Gracie.

"Looking on the Bright Side" does not attempt to scale any new heights in direction, nor does the story aspire to epic qualities, but it serves more than adequately as a vehicle for the irrepressible Gracie which is sufficient guarantee that it is a diverting entertainment.

LIL DAGOVER AT THE QUEEN'S

"THE WOMAN FROM MONTE CARLO"

"The Woman from Monte Carlo," which is showing at the Queen's Theatre to-day, tells the story of a married woman, and two men.
Lil Dagover, the famous Continental star is in the leading role, and although the film was made in America it has a thoroughly Continental background.

Dagover's acting in this picture is in the tradition of other European stars who have made good at Hollywood of the type of Greta Garbo and Marlene Dietrich. The love scenes with Warren Williams remind one of Greta Garbo and Ramon Novarro in "Mata Hari."

The story, in brief, tells of the wife (Lil) of the captain of a battleship during the war, who has been the idol of Monte Carlo before she got married. By her fascination she has captured the hearts of many men, and among them are D'Ortelles and Brambourg, officers serving in the same ship as her husband. As a result and during a raid the ship is sunk and both the captain and D'Ortelles are wounded, but Brambourg escapes.

Knowing that her husband will be court-martialled for the loss of his ship and that Brambourg is the only man who can vindicate him,
she appeals to him for help.
Brambourg, however, tells her that her husband's fate lies in her hands, and in desperation she rushes into the trial and vindicates her husband at the expense of her good name. In the end Brambourg is shot by D'Ortelles, but Lil in an outcast goes back to the place where she once belonged.

Lil Dagover acted splendidly in her first American picture, and while Warren Williams, her husband, and Wyn Richmond, her rival, are both excellent actors, the picture is a well-executed production.

"HORSE FEATHERS" The 4 Marx Brothers at the King's

THE MISSES WOODS SING
GRACIE FIELDS SONGS.

A very enjoyable introduction to "Horse Feathers," the new film at the King's to-day, is the trailer for "Looking on the Bright Side," of which a large part is the singing by the Misses Doris and Aileen Woods of "Gracie's" songs.

The Misses Woods are well-known and deservedly popular locally as vocalists, and it was a happy thought that inspired the management of the King's Theatre to persuade them to sing "over the air"
a few of the songs of the coming picture. They have both heard Gracie Fields sing and have very cleverly adapted their own style to hers.

The King's Theatre send us the following notes:—

Gracie Marx has decided to buy an eskimo and make his own ice.

The bemustached, bespectacled member of the Four Marx Brothers team reached the decision during the filming of "Horse Feathers," latest of the comic comedies starring him and his three brothers, Chico, Harpo, and Zeppo, now on display at the King's Theatre.
Chico, dialect punster of the quartette, is cast as a bootleggerice-man. He takes cakes of ice, bores holes in them, and then conceals bottles of Rye, Gin and Scotch in the holes.
Though hardly more than a score of blocks of ice are seen in the picture, it required many times that number during production, for under the heated glare of studio lights, the cakes of ice melted rapidly. Call after call went out for more.

"For what this is costing," remarked Gracie, "I could buy an Eskimo and make my own ice."
Chico, as the bootlegger-ice-man, and Harpo, as the town dog-outdoor in "Horse Feathers," help Gracie, a college president, get his son Zeppo out of school after he has spent 12 years there as a freshman.

"THARK" WITH RALPH LYNN

AND THE "ALDWYCH GANG"

The mere announcement of the fact that Ralph Lynn, Tom Walls and other of the Aldwych players are to be seen in a new farce comedy is sufficient to suggest good entertainment. Once again it is a society version of one of Ben Travers' plays. In the past these were good enough to put the Aldwych Theatre on the "theatre map," so good in fact that the theatre gained a reputation as the home of comedy. "Thark" is the new picture, and in addition to the Lynn-Walls combination, dear old Mary Brough and Robertson Hare play their original parts, together with two newcomers in Evelyn Baerock and Joan Brerley.

"YOUNG BRIDE"

POPULAR PLAYERS AND
"TAXI" DANCERS

Forty professional taxi-dancing girls, recruited from the Los Angeles dance halls make their motion picture debut in "Young Bride," the RKO-Pathé production which is now showing at The Central Theatre.

Heading the cast are four of the screen most popular young players, Helen Twelvetrees, the blonde beauty who rose to fame in "Har-Man" and "Millie" has the starring role. In the romantic lead opposite her is Eric Linden, young New York Theatre Guild actor who has failed as a film find as the result of his work in "Are These Our Children?"

Arline Judge, youth Broadway beauty who also distinguished herself in "Are These Our Children?" and Polly Walters carry the other two leading roles.
The story concerns the romance of a demure librarian and the handsome shiek of a cheap dance hall.

"BRAVEST WOMAN
WE EVER MET"Jump For Life From Burning PlaneFIFTY YARDS RACE FROM EXPLODING TANKS

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Jan. 17.—Pilots and mechanics on the London-Paris air route are all talking to-day of "the bravest woman they ever met."

She is Mrs. White, of Teddington, Middlesex, who was one of three passengers in an airplane which caught fire in mid-air on the way from Paris to London and had to make a forced descent near Amiens, France.

Mrs. White, who landed at Croydon to-day said:—

"It was a trying experience, but what could I do? I knew that I had to remain calm, so I just remained calm. I was alarmed, of course; when I saw the flames.

"We were flying low, because of bad weather, and it did not take us long to get down.

"I did not know what was happening in the pilot's cabin. I could see it was full of smoke.

"The steward told us to keep our seats and be calm. I could see nothing outside for the smoke and flames. I felt we were going down and then suddenly we bumped on the ground.

"When we reached the ground the steward opened the door and we jumped out.

"Within a fraction of time afterwards the flames had crept back from the engine all along the wings, and the fuselage and the body were alight.

"We stood watching the flames for a second or two, and then I heard the pilot shout 'Run before the tanks explode.'

"The field was inches deep in mud, but we stumbled and slithered through it until we were 50 yards away, when the tank exploded.

"I think the pilot did marvelous work in bringing the plane down safely in such circumstances.

"The steward was very good. When I heard him shout 'Keep calm' I felt reassured at once.

First Flight.

"This was the first time I had flown. I left Geneva yesterday for Lyons, where I took the plane for Paris.

"At Lyons two other passengers, Mr. Clark and Mr. Harris, coming from Cannes, joined the Paris plane for Croydon.

"I noticed nothing wrong at the start from Le Bourget, but three-quarters of an hour later sparks began coming from the pilot's cabin, and then flames started around the machine, and we were blinded by the smoke. It all happened so suddenly that it was over before we realised the danger we had gone through."

Steward's Tribute.

Mr. George Hudson, the steward, described Mrs. White's bravery. He said: "I admired the way she behaved in a moment of grave danger. There was no mistaking the risk we were in when we saw the flames shoot back. Mrs. White saw it—and sat calm."

"When I spoke to her she just smiled. Her smile told me that she realised that we were all close to death. Then the machine landed and we were out. Mrs. White stepped out as quietly as she stepped out at Croydon to-day."

Mrs. White joined the League of Nations Secretariat about seven years ago after passing a competitive examination, and has lately been attached to the communications and transit section in Geneva. Before her marriage several years ago, she was Miss W. M. Hodgson.

The names of the passengers were given on the passenger list as Mrs. White, of London; Mr. Clark, of Chatham, and Mr. Harris, of Oxford.

A VETERAN OF PEIPING

London, Jan. 11.—The death is announced, at the age of 67, of Mr. Henry Charles Davis, of Goodmayes, Essex, who is believed to have been the oldest ex-N.C.O. of the British Army. He ran away from home to join the Army, and was promoted sergeant on the field after the storming of the Peking forts in the China War of 1900. After being invalided out in 1907, he became a master plasterer. When the Great War broke out his services were refused in the Army and for four months he made munitions at Woolwich Arsenal. The only time he was ill was at the age of 66, when he was knocked down and severely injured by a lorry. His sight and hearing were perfect. He had 10 children, over 50 grand-children, and six great-grandchildren.

EDINBURGH, Jan. 17.

"Ian Hays" Grandfather.

"Ian Hays" (Major J. H. Beith), in his lecture in Edinburgh the other night on "Screen versus Stage," declared himself an ardent believer in the theatre, and he added: "I say that in full consciousness of the fact that my grandfather once presided in this very hall (the Church of Scotland Assembly Hall) as Moderator of the Free Kirk of Scotland." In the list of Free Church Moderators given in an old number of "Oliver and Boyd" I find the Moderator in 1838 was the Rev. Alex. Beith, D.D., Stirling. Great Free Church figures followed a little later in Dr. Robert Candlish (1861), Dr. Thomas Guthrie (1862), and Dr. James Begg (1865).

John Buchan Urges Shorter Hours.

"What we must look forward to is a system of shorter hours for the workers and a good deal of leisure filled with new crafts and interests," said Mr. John Buchan, M.P., president of the Federation of University Conservative and Unionist Associations, at their conference at Oxford yesterday.

"It is possible," he said, "that our economic crisis may be a blessing in disguise if it forces us to put the whole of our industrial life on a more wholesome basis."

The whole of our industrial system had been breaking down, and it might be that the solution of the difficulty would be found in something like what was being attempted now in the worst areas of unemployment in South Wales.

"I believe," said Mr. Buchan, "that the National Government may be the first stage to a proper redistribution of parties, long overdue, so that we may brigade together all those who believe in discipline, order, and reasoned evolution, as against those who think with their nerves and heart instead of with their heads."

"But the National Government can only be successful if all the different strains in it contribute to the common pool. The enormous problems ahead will never be solved unless there is a steady flow of precious thought and fruitful ideas from the ordinary citizens of the country."

Mr. Buchan added that although the League of Nations had done a great deal of useful work it had made a great many bad mistakes. "It has been largely in the hands of the crank, the sentimentalist, and that appalling creature the publicist," he added.

Shipbuilder Dead.

An eminent Clyde shipbuilder, Mr. Patrick T. Caird, died at his residence, Belleaire, Newark Street, Greenock, on Saturday, aged 84 years. He had been ill for some time.

Mr. Caird was head of the world-famous shipbuilding and engineering firm of Messrs. Caird and Co., Greenock, until the business was acquired by Messrs. Harland and Wolff about 16 years ago.

Mr. Caird was well-known in Glasgow and throughout Scotland as chairman of the old Glasgow and South-Western Railway Company, a position he held for 15 years, retiring in 1915. He was a former chairman of the Association of Clyde Engineers and shipbuilders.

Community Service.

The Glasgow Council for Community Service in Unemployment is now in being. In bringing together all the agencies that have been operating in the city on behalf of the unemployed the Council will ensure that there is no overlapping of effort and that all unemployed may share in the facilities for education and recreation to be given for their use. The bodies and individuals who constitute the Council are a guarantee that it is both representative of the city's interests and influential in procuring the best guidance and training that can be given. The Lord Provost's preliminary announcement of an appeal that will be made for funds is not the least important of the remarks made at yesterday's meeting, and will, we hope, prepare the public for generous giving to an excellent cause.

Remaking Scotland.

Since the construction of the Forth and Clyde Canal was rejected some years ago by the first Labour Government as an employment giving scheme it has been widely assumed that the last had been heard of this project. Surprise will, accordingly, be occasioned by its revival in a vast programme of reconstruction put forward here this week as the way to the economic and industrial rehabilitation of Scotland. It is associated with the ambitious plan for rebuilding the slums of Glasgow, to which I referred recently, as well as with kindred schemes for modernising the Caledonian Canal, widening the Crinan Canal, extensive development of afforestation, and the consolidation of the Scottish steel industry. The remaking of Scotland on this colossal scale is put forward as a serious illustration of how the Building Industry National Council, and those associated with them, should tackle the problem of regional planning.

East Fife.

This is an important day in the East Fife by-election, for the Unionist Association meets to decide whether to approve the recommendation of the executive that Mr. Henderson Stewart, the National Liberal nominee, should be supported by the Unionist Party. No doubt there will be objections from supporters of Mr. J. L. Anderson, the Farmers' candidate, but we doubt if a substantial number of East Fife Unionists will be found aligning themselves with a movement designed to embarrass the National Government in its task of restoring conditions of prosperity throughout the country. If the Government has not adopted wholesale the Agricultural Party's programme it is because less spectacular methods are in the peculiar conditions of the time more effective for assisting agriculture.

Sir Harry's Haggis Gift.

Sir Harry Lauder has taken a keen interest in the Scottish Regimental Association of Yorkshire—the "Jocks," as they are called—of which he is an hon. vice-president.

and he has just given a further example of his interest by offering to supply the whisky and haggis for the Association's second annual dinner in Leeds next month. It was hoped that Sir Harry might have been able to attend but he will be in America at that time.

Shorter Cuts.

Although some of the ladies have been cultivating Victorian locks, the edict has gone forth that hair is to be shorter than ever next summer. There may be those who will show an inclination to rebel, but the mysterious individuals who set the fashion in headwear can force them to capitulate. So far the Nationalists or Home Rulers have failed to deal with this denationalising process.

Dinner With the Black Watch.

I attended the annual dinner of the Black Watch Association (London branch) on Saturday. It was a "splendecious" affair, distinguished by a congratulatory telegram from the King, who is, of course, Colonel-in-Chief, by the presence of General Sir Archibald Cameron, who has just been appointed Commander-in-Chief in Scotland, and by a vast display of "Red Hackle."

The famous plume which is called the Red Hackle is the particular pride of the Black Watch. It is worn in feather-bonnet, service cap, toques, tin-hat, and pyjama button-hole.

The sight of the Red Hackle has a depressing effect upon members of a certain English cavalry regiment which in 1795 nearly lost two guns against the French. The guns were rescued by the Black Watch at the last minute, and as a reward the British Commander-in-Chief transferred the right of wearing the red plume from the cavalry regiment to the Highlanders.

I am obliged to add that this particular C-in-C, Sir David Dundas, was himself a Scot.

McSmith, McBrown, and McEvans.

To-day, if an other regiment tries to sport a red plume (and the attempt has been made), there is trouble. Special permission to wear the hackle has been given, however, to the 42nd Royal Highlanders of Canada.

One of the most impressive features of Saturday's function was the evidence of the care which the Association takes to keep contact with Black Watch men overseas, and to find employment for every man who has been a member of the regiment.

The "big noises" of the evening were Pipe-Major Smith, champion piper of the Army, Lance-Corporal Brown, his assistant, and Colonel Evans, most modest of V.C.s who captured a German pill-box single-handed.

With these three distinguished Highland names the traditions of the fighting Forty-two are in safe keeping.

RECORD WILD BOAR SHOT

SHOOTING PARTY'S CHINESE NEW YEAR ADVENTURE

What is thought to be the largest wild boar shot by local hunters was brought back to the Colony over the Chinese New Year holidays by a party of enthusiastic Chinese sportsmen after a very adventurous shooting trip into Chinese territory.

The party left Hong Kong during the holidays aboard the motor launch Saarland, and followed the coast to Castle Peak where they rounded the Peninsula and steamed into Hau Hoi Wan or Deep Bay at the mouth of the Canton river. Landing, they carefully picked their way through the deep marshes and entered the Shum Chun river in Chinese territory.

The country about here is very barren and it was surprising to think that it was a place for search of game. However, here and there footprints of large animals, as big as the palm of the hand, were seen, and after four days of tracking they came upon a thick shrubbery some few miles inland. Here their dogs refused to move any further, and, barking furiously, gave signs of a bear being in the vicinity. Realising this the sportsmen set twenty beaters to work and surrounded the place.

A bunch of firecrackers and several loud bomb-crackers were thrown into the bush and the party stood guarding the openings. Suddenly a young female boar shot out of the shrubbery and was immediately shot by one of the party. Following almost directly on its heels was a large male boar. A well aimed shot which entered the animal's heart brought it to the ground.

To weigh the animal it took four men standing on high boxes and supporting the boar on two thick bamboo poles. The small female pig weighed 150 catties or about 200 lbs., while the large boar weighed 387 catties or over 380 lbs. It is thought that the large boar is the biggest of its kind shot by the local sportsmen.

In addition to the bag of two wild boars the hunters also bagged four deer and many head of small game.

A photograph of the wild boar is on view at the Outdoor Sports Equipment Company, Gloucester Buildings.

THE INDUSTRIES OF KOWLOON

I. The Industrious

The editor has asked me to write about the industries of Kowloon, I wish he had asked me to describe the industrious, for that would be far easier.

I know the industrious. I travel daily with them on the ferry. They are of all ages, classes, and races. We sit close together and try to keep warm, the Chinese joki in his cotton garments and his master in a padded coat; the typists in their flimsy but smart little coats, often hatless but never untidy of head; the housewives going over to the island to shop, well powdered noses, half hidden behind coat collar or fur; the business men, some of them aggressively hearty about the cold, others cursing it; the school children, Chinese, Japanese and Portuguese, chattering a polyglot language in which they slip in one sentence from Chinese to English and finish it in Portuguese. These are some of the industrious whose tasks take them daily to Hong Kong.

By the Canton Train.

But there are other ferry passengers. The shouting crowd of coolies who fight their way down to the lower deck with their burdens of foodstuffs for the island; the seething mass, laden with bundles parcels and papier mache suitcases, which arrives each evening from Canton by train, crosses the harbour, and is apparently absorbed in the population of Hong Kong.

And what of the industrious who live and work in Kowloon? Who shall count them? Thousands of them are employed in factories the very existence of which is known only to certain Government officials among the British population. They load and unload the vessels arriving daily at the wharves. They are employed in the big shipbuilding yards, in the cement factory, the rope works and the brick works. They are cutting down hills and shovelling them into swamps to make fresh land, they are laying down roads and for some mysterious purpose digging holes on them before the surface is dry. They are building a modern city on the mainland so quickly that to leave Kowloon and return in three months, is to find new houses, new shops and whole new streets where before was a parcel of waste ground.

Although the exterior of The Jade Tree buildings look as though we were closed down — we are very far from it. Behind the shutters there is plenty of light — and the finest showing of goods that we have ever had in Hong Kong.

The new building — or the new portion of the building — will be ready for occupancy about the 10th of February. In the meantime we have erected a long and showy banner to tell the story of what is taking place. But business as usual.

KOWLOON PIGEON CLUB.

The annual show of the Kowloon Pigeon Club was held at the Kowloon Hotel on Monday and yesterday when a number of very valuable and pretty birds were exhibited, the list including Homers, Pouter, Jacobins and Owls. Many of the birds, which stood in cages set out on tables sheltered by trees were placed in the show, not for competition, but with the object of increasing interest in the rearing of pigeons. Mr. Logan, the president of the Club, has had a very busy time during the past two days in attending to arrangements, and the duties of Mr. G. W. Kynoch as judge were not light ones in deciding which of the many excellent exhibits should be awarded the prizes. There was a large number of people at the show yesterday afternoon when the Cameron Highlanders' band attended and played selections of music. The following were the prize winners:—

Class I Thomas Pairs, 1st prize A. G. Watson.

Class I Thomas Pairs, 2nd prize Mr. Alvin.

Class I Thomas Pairs, 3rd prize Mr. Osborne.

Class II Thomas Pairs Singles, 1st prize Sergt. Wildon.

Class III Thomas Pairs Dragons, 1st prize Mr. Osborne.

MULE SHEDS RECONSTRUCTED

IN A "MOST DESIRABLE" SITE

The mule sheds belonging to the Indian Mule Corps at Whitfield Barracks extending along the border of Nathan Road between Austin Road and the Mosque, are being reconstructed. They have been a prominent landmark in Kowloon for some years and were formerly built of matting. In 1924 the sheds caught fire and made a remarkably big blaze. It was a very terrible affair for a number of mules lost their lives — the terrified animals being chained to their stables and no rescue was possible before the flames were extinguished.

The new sheds, three in number, will be constructed of brick and tile roofing.

No doubt Kowloon residents will regard the new constructions with dismay. They suggest that Whitfield Barracks are permanently anchored where they are and that very desirable building site, will not be available for a new shopping and residential area for a long time to come.

On the other hand optimistic cynics declare that to put up any number of solid buildings can be regarded as the first step in preparing the ground for quite other purposes!

At Kowloon Magistracy yesterday further evidence was taken in the case against four Indian constables who are charged with obtaining a bribe from a Chinese hawkler in charge of cigarette shooting gallery in Shum Shui Po.

The hawkler in evidence said that he operated his stall in Lei Chi Kok Road during the Chinese New Year. The defendants whom he could not recognize, but gave the number of one from his uniform, accused him of running a gambling den and asked for "squeeze". The money was paid to avoid trouble but the policeman said that he would return. In the meantime the hawkler reported the matter to the police and had the constables arrested.

The hearing was adjourned.

NEW TERRITORIES

Work of District Officer

COUNCILS OF ELDERS

For administrative purposes the New Territories are divided into two portions. The land lying to the North of the Kowloon Hills is under the District Officer, North, while the District Officer South is in charge of the part lying South of the hills, and of all the islands. These officers are also magistrates who hear and arbitrate in all local disputes either at the central offices in Victoria or at the outlying Police Stations, which they visit regularly.

Municipal Life.

Almost every village has its own Council of Elders, the Kai Fong, who are elected yearly by the people and form a Town Council, which manages local affairs under the supervision of the District Officer, and keeps an account of the expenditure of the public monies. They are usually men of mature age and known merit whose duty it is to be responsible for the moral welfare of the village. The District Officer is often very much indebted to their influence for the maintenance of peace, and to their knowledge when a decision must be made that involves questions of local custom, of a disputed succession, or of Fung Shui, etc. The Kai Fong meet either in a temple or an assembly hall specially kept for that purpose.

A District Officer's Day.

A typical day in the life of a District Officer gives an excellent idea of local government and its working in the New Territories. He is, let us say, due to make an official visit to Tai O, the large village at the Southern end of Lan Tau Island. His launch leaves Hong Kong at 9 a.m., and going through Kap Shui Mun Pass, keeps along the North coast of Lan Tau until Tai O is reached after a journey of about two hours and a half. On disembarking, the party is met by the Police Officer and taken to the charge room of the Police Station which during the visit is converted into a Police Court, where any and every case in the district is to be dealt with. The head Kai Fong is usually present, and is by virtue of his position asked to accept a seat near the District Officer.

The cases are brought forward and should there be some question concerning the welfare of the village the Kai Fong is consulted. When the cases have all been disposed of, various subjects relating to the village are discussed. Perhaps a road or temple is in need of repair; some man has encroached on the property of another; someone has been beating his wife, and a hundred and one questions affecting the peace of the village are examined.

Nothing is too large or too small for the attention of the District Officer. Often it is suggested, "Will he be good enough to make a personal visit?" He will and does so. The road or temple is certainly in need of repair and the Government will grant a sum to assist. The unruly husband is rebuked; boundaries of disputed lots are measured and marked out; the officer returns to the Police Station having accomplished a useful day's work.

Friend of the Villages.

To the Villages in the Territories the District Officer is the Government. Whatever happens he is their own particular official, and what is more, their friend. He does his work with a minimum of legal formality and a maximum simplicity which has tended to inspire confidence and attract the people to our matter-of-fact system. Perhaps the Public Works Department wants to resume certain areas for making a reservoir or a new road. The District Officer is asked to confirm this and watch the interest of his people with regard to compensation, and now accommodation. In fact he is responsible for the well-being and happiness of his whole district. From this account of his duties one might think that these officers must be men with a profound understanding of the peculiarities of the Chinese and of how to deal with them. On the contrary, the posts are generally given to young cadets soon after they have passed the necessary examinations in the Chinese language. This is done so that they may gain a thorough insight into the habits and customs of the people and a wide knowledge of the Territories in general. From Aspects and Aspects By S. H. Popley and M. Barker.

KOWLOON

SEEN "FROM A HONG KONG ARM CHAIR"

A feature of that most interesting periodical "The Rock," is "From a Hong Kong Arm Chair." Thus in the February number the author muses on Kowloon.

We turned our gaze seawards, for a movement over the water between the Island and Kowloon distracted us, and on the water we noticed not only one but many pilots. They were not stationary as on land, but moving generally towards the further shore. As if some fairy hand had moulded them, they change in colour and in size until an armada of ships is creeping through the Lyceum Pass to the berthing stations at Kowloon. Our mind with microscopic accuracy scanned the tiny decks on which we saw the countless priests and nuns and brothers, on their way to work in Hong Kong or merely passing through to do the work of God elsewhere.

And then the hand of Time left the Island and hastened to Kowloon. With loving care it sketched amongst the hills and brooks, the wild unbroken country, the plans of cities and of Colleges and Churches. Upon Prince Edward Road the hills melted away to make room for La Salle College, under the care of the Brothers of the Christian Schools. We gazed enthralled and asked ourselves if it were really true, and all the time we knew it was. Nearer the sea, on Chatham Road, another self-completed spot grew into the splendid new St. Mary's School. Back again amongst the hills, where two great roads cross, in the very centre of a city that has grown as it were in the night, we saw St. Theresa's Church spring from its foundations to be opened as the House of God. And then in upon our ears broke the sounds of an organ, and from the Rosary Church we seemed to hear a grand "Te Deum" in thanksgiving for everything.

GOVERNOR'S TRIBUTE TO SIR WILLIAM SHENTON

AT LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL MEETING

NO DECISION ABOUT CRIMINAL APPEAL COURT

His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., at yesterday's meeting of the Legislative Council congratulated Sir William Shenton on the honour of knighthood recently conferred on him, and paid a warm tribute to his public services in Hong Kong.

Addressing the Council, His Excellency said:—Before proceeding with the business of the meeting, I should like on behalf of the members of this Council to tender our sincere congratulations to one of our members, Sir William Shenton, on the honour conferred upon him by His Majesty the King in recognition of his services to the Colony. I will not attempt to recite a list of such services. They are well-known to you and will take a long time to recite, and it is sufficient for me to say that I know of no public service which he has not called upon to perform, which he has not performed with ability, zest and energy. His advice and help has been of great assistance to myself and my predecessors and also to many Government servants. On my own behalf and on their behalf I tender to him our sincere thanks.

I understand Sir William Shenton contemplates returning home, and I hope he will return to us as I am sure you will agree with me that his retirement would be a great loss to us. (Applause.)

Sir Henry Pollock, I desire, on behalf of the Unofficial members to associate myself with the words which have fallen from your Excellency.

Those Present.

His Excellency the Governor (Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E.) presided and also present were:

The Colonial Secretary:—A Bill to amend the Criminal Procedure Ordinance, 1930, the principal object of which is to make provision for criminal appeals in this Colony on the lines of the Criminal Appeal Act, 1907, has been drafted, and was forwarded to the Secretary of State for the Colonies for consideration in June 1932. HARRY ORE

PIANOFORTE RECITAL AT HELENA MAY

Mr. Harry Ore gave a very enjoyable pianoforte recital at the Helena May Institute yesterday, playing a programme which offered plenty of variety of treatment. It was unfortunate that he did not have a better audience, though the seventy or so people who did attend were very appreciative.

Mr. Ore's technique has "improved" if one may put it in that way, since his stay in Manila. He lets himself go more, puts more of himself into what he plays without losing the technical correctness which has always distinguished his playing. This was particularly notable in his rendering of the Contrabandist (Schumann-Tausig).

Mr. Ore played it with the spirit which he used to keep only for his own compositions, as if he were telling a story to an appreciative audience, not lecturing in music to a concert party.

I hope Mr. Ore will forgive me for the above, especially as it is intended as a complimentary comment in some small return for a most enjoyable hour spent listening to him.

Programme.

The programme was as follows:

WUCHOW NOTES

NEW YEAR CELEBRATIONS.

AS OF OLD

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Wuchow, January 33.

General Wong Shih Hung, the former Governor of the Province, was expected here last week. The local authorities engaged two motor-boats to meet the s.s. Chung On, in which he was making the trip from Samshui but when Dr. Ma Kwan Mo, Director of the Kwangsi Acid Factory, who has been accompanying the Governor, was met on board, he said that General Wong had been delayed in Canton where he was to attend a conference at which General Tsai Ting Kai, who had just arrived from Fukien, was also to be present.

Although 1932 was not a successful year business, generally, people are celebrating Chinese New Year as usual and there seemed to be no falling off in the festivities. The cracker firing was as brisk as ever and the authorities took no steps to limit this, or any other form of celebration.

The steamers running between Wuchow and Hong Kong suspended their services over the New Year except the s.s. Tai Ming which arrived at Wuchow on New Year's day and left on the 29th, the 4th day of the New Year.

A village named To Yuen some 30 miles above Wuchow was recently raided by ten robbers who plundered a number of houses and killed an old lady on the night before the New Year. A large number of troops are engaged in bandit suppression in this district but a certain number of brigands are evading all efforts at suppression and carrying on their usual programme of crime and violence.

YESERDAY'S WORK

AT HAPPY VALLEY

(From "The Magazine," St. Joseph's College, Trichinopoly and reproduced in "The Rock.")

Savonarola was a Dominican monk. He was a friar by birth. He became the chief soul of the religious fabric of Florence, and many people sat under his feet to study religious wisdom. After a time he slipped the cup betwixt the lip, and seized the reign of government.

He began to preach violently against Pope. Pope tried to silence him in the shape of a cardinal's hat, but the prophet replied that he would rather have the red head of a martyr. Later, he became the target of his age. He is a figure round which Time has wreathed a hail of romance. He exercised considerable influence over the novel Romola.

He was a man of uncorrupted honesty.

Malaria is caused by mosquitoes who breed their young in slums. They fill their claws and fangs with malaria germs; that is why they are dangerous. Sir Ronald Ross is to be eternally blessed for having invented the cause of malaria.

Septic poisoning formerly caused death. Lister discovered an antiseptic remedy, thanks to which septicism is no longer feared by surgeons.

A man who buys a dog should ask whether it has had a bad temper (distemper).

READING MATTER

FOR THE BLIND

"BRAILLE" COMES TO CHINA'S HELPLESS

The plight of the blind in China was forcibly emphasised by Dr. Gordon Thompson of the Church Missionary Society at the annual meeting of the Braille Literature Association for China, which was held at Shanghai recently.

He told a number of instances of blind people coming to him for treatment, and said that with the exception of one, whose sight was restored, none could be cured.

In order to console and to help these poor people, the Braille Literature Association was formed with a view to training them to read and to write by the Braille method.

A demonstration of this method was then made by one of the blind members of the Shanghai Institution for Chinese-Blind, and his easy reading of Braille delighted the audience.

Demands for apparatus and Braille literature followed from all quarters of China, and in this respect last year had been beyond the average moving the need which exists for an institution to supply these books at cheap rates.

The publishing of The Life of Pastor Han in Braille was announced (Continued at foot of next column)

DEATH OF MR. G. A. RICHARDSON

SON OF FOUNDER AND SHANGHAI DIRECTOR OF BRADLEY AND COMPANY

The death occurred in London on January 31 of Mr. George Arthur Richardson, late Director of Messrs. Bradley and Company, Limited, and youngest son of the late Mr. T. W. Richardson founder of Bradley and Company.

The deceased came to China about thirty years ago to join his father, and the firm, at Swatow. He later became a partner of the firm and went to Shanghai where he took charge of the branch. In 1914 the firm was taken over by Messrs. Bradley and Company, and Mr. Richardson remained in Shanghai until 1919 and returned to London where he lived up till the time of his death.

Mr. Richardson was a member of the Hong Kong Club and the Hong Kong Golf Club and was a keen sportsman.

Funeral arrangements will be made by Messrs. Bradley and Company.

His death is a great loss to the firm and to the community.

He was born in London on January 1, 1862, and died on January 31, 1933, at the age of 71.

He was married and had a family.

He was a devoted father and a loyal friend.

JUBILEE ROAD MURDER

Another Acquittal At The Sessions

The jury returned a unanimous verdict of "Not Guilty" yesterday at the Criminal Session when the trial concluded of Lam Yat, the third man to be brought before Mr. Justice Wood in connection with the murder in Jubilee Road.

Mr. R. C. H. Lim, instructed by Mr. F. X. D'Almada, arr., severely cross-examined Lam Heung, the police informer. The latter gave evidence of a statement made by the accused when charged, denying that he had taken any part in the murder.

Mr. Lim submitted there was no case to go to the jury. The evidence was conflicting and, at the most, there was only suspicion, and that was not sufficient.

His Lordship:—The case must go to the jury for what it is worth. Mr. Lim called no evidence.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, for the Crown said that the motive for the murder was to get rid of a bad son.

His Lordship:—What evidence is there that that motive was operating in the mind of the accused?

Mr. Fraser:—It is purely inference. The case must stand or fall on the evidence of Lam Heung.

The jury believed Lam Heung's story, they would have no doubt that accused was present at the murder. If they did not believe the story, there was no evidence at all that the accused took any part in the murder.

His Lordship, in summing up, said it would be dangerous to act on the evidence of Lam Heung concerning the conversation in the tea-shop.

The jury returned a verdict as stated and the prisoner was discharged.

STORING OF FIRE CRACKERS

DEFENDANTS CONVICTED

The case in which six leading Chinese firms, dealers in fire crackers, were summoned for storing crackers in premises that did not comply with the Regulations was concluded at Central Magistrate yesterday when Mr. Wayne Jones convicted five of the defendants, but acquitted Mr. F. E. Losby, defending solicitor giving an undertaking that every effort would be made to secure suitable premises, his Worship postponed imposing penalties till Saturday. In the other summons his Worship adjourned the case for seven days, the circumstances not being as serious as the former cases.

Giving evidence, Mr. J. C. Fitz-Henry, who prosecuted, stated that he visited the premises on January 28 and on various floors of the building, he found a considerable number of fire-crackers, estimated to be several thousands in number. The employees slept on the premises, and cooking was also done there. Crackers were packed and repacked on the premises, and for this purpose a number of girls were employed.

BANDIT CHIEF TURNS CHRISTIAN

ACCEPTED NOW AS PROTECTOR

An interesting story of how a bandit chief, once the scourge of a district, was converted to Christianity has been received from our correspondent in Yuanchow, Hunan.

He writes: A bandit chief, who has been a terror to the community and who, with his men, has evaded capture by the city troops on several occasions, attended a Christian missionary in charge to accept him into the Christian faith. He has now been attending these meetings for some time, and for several weeks before his conversion he had been taking deep interest in Christianity and had renounced his unlawful activities. At a recent feast, at which there was not one Christian present, he asked for a blessing, and, in the presence of all, said a short prayer.

Later his services were accepted by his former enemies, of the Regular Army, and he was sent to protect the district which he once used to plunder.

His Lordship:—The case must go to the jury for what it is worth. Mr. Lim called no evidence.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, for the Crown said that the motive for the murder was to get rid of a bad son.

EDUCATION IN CHINA

Dr. H. H. Kung said very truly, in the course of a speech delivered at Manchester, that if the standard of living in China could be raised immense markets for foreign goods would be opened, and no more would be heard of the Economic Depression. But such a material revolution means a complete change in mental outlook—a change in which the educationalist will in the long run play a bigger part than any other factor. The Chinese people comprise a quarter of the human race. They are a nation in transition and the forces creating this vast upheaval are therefore of greater importance even than the present trade dislocation. Education in China, in fact, a matter for world interest and study.

Two independent reports have been made recently upon the Chinese educational system, one by a layman's commission from the United States sent to survey all phases of missionary work, and another by a commission of European educational experts appointed by the Council of the League of Nations in response to a request from the Chinese Government.

The American commission confined its studies largely to missionary schools, while the European experts surveyed only Chinese schools. But both groups agreed that "Americanization" of closely with the needs of the Chinese masses.

The "Americanization" of the Chinese educational system has come about naturally. American missionaries played a major part in the introduction of modernized education to China; being familiar with their own educational methods, they endeavored to apply them to China. And thousands of Chinese students educated in the United States, convinced of the efficacy of American methods in that country, returned to China eager to graft these methods upon the old Chinese system.

The resultant tendency, in the opinion of the League Commission, has been to "create an enormous abyss between the masses of the Chinese people, plunged in illiteracy and not understanding the needs of their country, and the intelligentsia educated in luxurious schools and indifferent to the wants of the masses." The system has become so alien that it "is highly injurious to the masses and dangerous because a carefully educated social elite not closely connected with general needs may become transformed into an unproductive clique enclosed within the narrow bounds of its own interests."

The American system, as the League Commissioners pointed out, has been adapted from European models to the special conditions prevailing in the United States. These conditions are totally different from those in China, where the standard of living must necessarily be far lower than that in America for many years to come. The European educators hinted, although they did not state, that a Chinese student with an American education possesses a luxury which China cannot yet afford. He is, therefore, not adequately prepared for life in his own country.

The League Commissioners suggested that the Chinese are more likely to find models in Europe than in America upon which they may build an indigenous system of education, "because American civilization has developed in spite of a total absence of local traditions, whereas European, like Chinese, civilization must always take account of local traditions dating back thousands of years." The Commission emphasized, however, that it does not wish to see European Looking Back 25 Years.

Even in things medical, China is bettering itself. Hitherto, anyone there could set himself up as a doctor without undergoing an examination, with the result that ignorant people practise the medical profession to the injury of the public. The authorities in Kiangsu province have sought to remedy this by the issuing of a proclamation ordering all Chinese doctors there to pass an examination to be held officially. The medical profession will be restricted to those who pass in two classes of fitness.—Hong Kong Daily Press, February 3, 1933.

another land, and in different conditions, can become the cultural tradition of the China that is now entering upon an era of reform. New China must mobilize its forces, and from its own history, from its own literature, from all that is truly indigenous, extract the materials for a new civilization, that will be neither American nor European, but Chinese.

These two reports have been carefully studied by Chinese educators who have realized for some time that the educational system is faulty, but have not been able precisely to analyse its defects. The so-called "anti-foreign" movement against missionary schools and the restlessness in Chinese public schools may be explained in large part, they believe, as a partially conscious protest against further "foreignization" of the Chinese educational system. Chinese educators heartily agree with the League Commissioners that "public education in China will not attain the value of Western education until all signs of European and American influence have been eliminated, when there will be something really Chinese, to compare with what is essentially American or European." They realize that the process must necessarily be long, but it is with Seeing Things.

According to Sir Walter Besant, the author of "Medieval London," the thirteenth of January, 1333, exactly 700 years ago must have been somewhat disturbing for the citizens of London.

"Four suns appeared in the sky at the same time, together with a great circle of crystalline colour... Two dragons were seen fighting in the air until one overcame the other... Bodies of armed men sprang out of the ground and fought in battle array, and then sank into the ground again. To show that this was no mere apparition, the ground was trodden down where they had fought."

Queen Victoria's Railway Saloon.

The saloon coach in which Queen Victoria made many of her journeys by train is to be preserved by the London Midland and Scottish Railway at their works at Derby, whither it has been removed from Wolverton (Bucks), as the space there is required for other purposes.

The coach was originally built in 1869 at the former London and North Western Railway works at Wolverton. It contains two main compartments for day and night use respectively, the sleeping compartment being in the centre of the coach, with a dressing-room adjoining.

It is upholstered with crimson figured chintz, with the roof lined with white watered silk. The day compartment is upholstered in royal blue watered silk, with walls matching the furniture. The floor throughout is covered with Axminster carpet laid on cork and felt.

Sayings from Home.

Slumps carry within themselves the seeds of a reaction—just as booms do.—Mr. J. M. Keynes.

It is possible for a bookish education to be as narrow and illiberal as some people declare a technical education to be.—Mr. H. Ramsbotham, M. P.

The arts are being driven into an arid wilderness.—Mr. Paderewski.

The fact is that we have been breeding from the less worthy stocks in our population, and we have left eugenics out of our calculations.—Mr. C. J. Bond.

The adjective "fast," which was a condemnation when applied to profligates, has become a compliment when applied to progressives.—Mr. G. K. Chesterton.

It is always noticeable that, as scenes decrease, the hold of Parliament on the affections of the public decreases.—Mr. Robert Lynd.

I am not one of those who believe that England is degenerate if it has lost the Test match. Mr. Frank Fletcher.

The world is becoming like a lunatic asylum run by lunatics.—Mr. Lloyd George.

The Englishman is an exceptionally good linguist when his sense of utility is aroused, and an exceptionally bad one until that sense is aroused.—Lord Eustace Percy.

Civilian Governors.

Mr. Herbert William Emerson, who has been appointed Governor of the Punjab and also a K.C.S.I., has, like Sir Geoffrey de Montmorancy, whom he succeeds next April, served a long apprenticeship in the Indian Civil Service.

At one time it was something of a rarity for an official of the Indian Civil Service to be promoted to the governorship of a province. In recent years, however, several have attained this distinction, including Sir Malcolm Hailey, Governor of the United Provinces; Sir Hugh Lansdown Stephenson, of Bihar and Orissa, and Sir Michael Keane, of Assam.

Another civilian is Sir John Anderson, the recently appointed Governor of Bengal. His appointment, however, followed a long and distinguished career in the "Home Civil."

Mr. H. W. Emerson.

Most of Mr. Emerson's twenty-six years in India have been spent in the Punjab. His long experience of Indian conditions proved particularly valuable to the Administration when Mr. Gandhi launched his civil disobedience campaign.

Both Lord Irwin and Lord Willingdon were quick to appreciate the value of his judgment.

Mr. Emerson's son, Mr. Gerald Emerson, has followed his father into the Indian Civil Service, and is at present serving on the Punjab Commission.

President Hoover's Fishing Tragedy

President Hoover, who recently returned to Washington from his fishing holiday in the Gulf Stream waters off Florida, seems to have the unlucky hand.

He is an expert in catching small trout. This time he has been pitting his skill against the sailfish, the Atlantic cousin of the Pacific swordfish. Catching sailfish makes tarpon and tuna fishing tame. The sailfish can take out three hundred yards of line in a second or two and "walk on the water" while he is doing it.

The parades of every big-game fisher is to be elected an "immortal" of the Sailfish Club, qualification for which entails the catching of an eight-foot sailfish.

This is the story of President Hoover's tragedy.

The Missing Inch.
For once the President seemed to be in luck. He booked and landed a glorious sailfish, which was borne in triumph to the club's measuring scales.

It was the biggest fish of the season, and now the proud President was confident that he would receive the accolade from the rods of the other Sailfish Club members. He would be given a diamond star pin. He would enter the most select club in the world.

Alas! the tape line registered only ninety-five inches. No amount of stretching of the tail could make up the missing inch. A psychopathic suggestion to amend the rules to bring the President's fish into the membership class was rejected by Mr. Hoover.

Local and General

Cases of notifiable diseases reported on Wednesday were:—Small-pox 6, diphtheria, 1, meningitis 1.

January's rainfall totalled 0.49 of an inch. There was a slight fall—the maximum being .15 of an inch, on six days.

For anchoring their craft in Causeway Bay Shelter without the proper permit, eight boatpeople were fined $5 by Comdr. Hole at the Marine Court yesterday.

The total amount of silver and paper currency in circulation in China is estimated at $1,700,000,000 of which $700,000,000 is concentrated for the time being in Shanghai.

An unknown Chinese was found hanging in the kitchen of a vacant house in Third Street on Wednesday. The case is apparently one of suicide, and the body was removed to the mortuary.

Under the auspices of the Peiping branch of the world Swastika Association, the New World Building in the Hsiao Chang district there, has been opened as a shelter for women refugees from Shanghai, Kwantung and vicinity. More shelters will be established during the next few days.

Arrangements have been completed with the Bank of China and the Shanghai Commercial and Savings Bank to extend loans to farmers in Tongshan, Yinghsing (Kiangsu) and Wukiang (Anhui) as a form of rural relief. Similar facilities will be also available at Hsiao-chuang, near Nanking, through the Shanghai Commercial and Savings Bank.

Dr. H. H. Kung, who is heading the Chinese industrial mission in Germany, expects to remain in that country until the end of January and afterwards will proceed to Venice. He expects to leave Venice for Shanghai about February 10.

Parents, old boys and friends are invited to St. Stephen's College to attend the prize-giving at Stanley, in Saturday, February 4, at 3 p.m. The thirtieth anniversary of the College will be celebrated, and the Bishop of Hong Kong will distribute the prizes.

A fine of $3,000 with the alternative of ten months' hard labour was imposed by Mr. Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday on a Chinese who was charged with the unlawful possession of 10 tins of Kwangsi opium. It was stated that the defendant was employed by market mongers to rush live fish to purchasers from incoming Canton steamers and that he had misused his privileged position, he being one of the first allowed to go on board.

A new monthly steamship service between Halifax, Canada and Egypt and Java has been inaugurated. The first vessel sailing on the route has just arrived in Halifax. It is expected that the new service will stimulate the trade, which has already reached a considerable volume between Canada and the East Indies. Canada's annual imports of rubber amount to many thousands of tons and the Dominion is also a heavy importer of such commodities as canned pineapples, pepper, tobacco from Java and Ceylon, tea from Ceylon and cotton from Egypt.

According to a report from Nanking, the Ministry of War has ordered the abolition of various army flags to remove the distinction which proves to be advantageous to spies.

China figures in Canada's list of newspaper paper buyers. The United States is Canada's principal market. Of a total export during the month of October of $970,601 cwt., 2,649,991 cwt. went to the United States. In the order of the extent of their purchases, the next largest buyers of Canadian newspaper were Great Britain, Argentina, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, China, Irish Free State, Bermuda and Peru.

Charged with attempting to defraud a Wanchai pawnbroker by passing off two gold-washed brass bracelets as gold, a Chinese woman stated that the bracelets belonged to another woman, and she merely undertook to pawn them for her. Taking into consideration the fact that the defendant reported after her articles had been rejected, His Worship (Mr. Schofield) cautioned her and bound her over.

Up to the present, only about 8,000 sets of the China Merchants S.N. Co.'s shares have been transferred to the Government in accordance with the order of the China Tungpu 'tin' numbers, representing only less than one-fourth of the total shares. A view of the fact that the portion of transfer will expire at the end of next month, the China Tungpu will probably issue an order threatening to declare null and void those shares which have not been handed to the Government within the period of six months from the date of the order.

CRICKET NOTES

M.C.C. TOUR TO CONTINUE

From recent telegrams, it appears that the M.C.C. tour will continue and that Australia will make no protest. The board of Control, however, has appointed a Committee to investigate the best method of making this so-called body-bowling illegal in Australia and of course, in that country, their decision is law. But they will forward their ruling in the form of a suggestion to the M.C.C., who may or may not accept it. It must be remembered that there are differences in the laws of the two countries at present. For instance, Australian bowlers have to send down eight balls per over, but the M.C.C. have always firmly refused to admit the change into English cricket.

The Unfortunate Umpires.

It is very difficult to see what solution is possible, but I cannot help feeling that the poor umpire is going to be the goat, if I may so term it. He usually is. In the last year or two first-class umpires have made it very clear that they have quite enough responsibility, if not too much. When there was a serious suggestion some years ago that a batsman should be l.b.w. if the ball would have hit the wicket no matter where it pitched, one or two of the leading umpires roundly said that they would not take the responsibility of deciding whether a breaking ball would or would not hit the wicket. Last season, when the "snick l.b.w." could be given out, the umpires fought very shy of it, and I believe there were less than half a dozen of such decisions adverse to the batsman. I am pretty sure therefore that umpires, or English umpires anyway, would strongly object to having to decide if the bowler was deliberately bowling off the wicket to leg, a just losing direction sometimes by ac-who has quite returned to form. His eighty was a very pretty innings without the semblance of a chance, and he was unlucky to be run out when he called for a short one and his partner, who was not backing up, sent him back. It is amazing how often you see the batsman at the bowler's end planted rock-like upon his heels, instead of moving gently down the wicket called. It is amazing how short you can run 'em, unless you are up against a fieldman who can throw the wicket down.

To-morrow's Games.

The Army and Crutchenower have no fixtures to-morrow but all the other six teams have League games. The one of paramount interest is the match between the Hong Kong Club at home and the Indians.

LEADING PLAYERS BEATEN

KENT PAIR'S VICTORY AT CUDDINGTON

BANSTEAD, Jan. 19. Three experts—F. Robson, A. J. Lacey, and W. T. Twine, making his first appearance for Langley Park since taking the place of Cotton—were beaten by a new personality, L. Bates, of Barnhurst, Kent, in the Croydon and District Alliance tournament at Cuddington, Banstead, yesterday.

Bates, a beautifully smooth hitter of the ball, not long, but exceedingly accurate, was partnered in a greensome competition over 27 holes by Mr. A. M. Keovil, and together they finished all square against bogey, whereas the others could do no better than four down. Bates was blessed with a partner who, though not accomplishing anything particularly noteworthy, did nothing egregiously wrong.

He was the ideal ally, always getting the approach shot somewhere on the green, and leaving his partner very few doubtful length putts. Little wonder that Bates had the greatest possible confidence in Keovil always doing the right thing.

Cuddington, starting with three holes averaging nearly 500 yards each—a nasty beginning for the player not on good terms with his wooden clubs—is not an easy course on which to score, and to finish all square is a better performance than it really sounds.

Indeed, two amateurs, E. R. Tittle, playing from plus 2, and Major P. G. Phillimore, of Addington Palace, were also all square, and in doing so finished in a blaze of glory. Phillimore almost holed his tee shot at the short fourth, then Tittle put a long spoon shot up against the pin at the fifth, while the seventh also fell into their net. This was 2, 3, 4, and at the last hole, after the side had been bunkered, Tittle holed a chip shot of about 30 yards for a half in 4.

Courageous Play

Bates and his partner accomplished nothing so spectacular as this, though they won their only stroke hole—the seventh (465 yards)—in 4, without making use of the shot. Three down at the tenth, they played the remaining eight holes courageously, obtaining a 2 at the eleventh, a fine 4 at the next (495 yards), and another good 4 at the eighteenth. They won these, and halved the remainder, which was excellent work.

Twine had as partner H. Richardson, a scratch player 22 years of age, who hits the ball rather leisurely. He would do better with a little more punch, but this will probably come later. The side's burden of four strokes to the course was beyond their powers.

As was only to be expected, Lacey's tee shots were so far in advance of his partner's—generally between 60 and 80 yards—that Mr. Harland's efforts seemed rather superfluous. They started with a great 4, but failed to keep up the standard.

Even so, the side was all square with four holes to play, but an unfortunate incident at the fifteenth appeared to act as a damper to their subsequent efforts. At the fifteenth, Lacey, missing a short putt for a 4, picked up the ball forgetting that the side were in receipt of a stroke. Instead of having the hole they lost it.

In the section for amateur partnerships Dr. Currie (14) and E. N. Heath (18), of Dartford, and J. V. Robertson (7) and E. P. Connolly (12), of Merton Park, finished 1 up. The Dartford couple took the first prize by reason of a better score for the first eighteen holes—1 up, as against 2 down. Leading returns:

Barnhurst (L. Bates, plus 4 and O. M. Keovil, 4), all square; Cuddington Court (L. T. Cotton, plus 4, and A. Grwylller, 8), 1 down; Langley Park (W. T. Twine, plus 4, and H. Richardson, scr.), 4 down; Royal Blackheath (W. C. Thomas, plus 4, and H. W. Willis, 10), 4 down; Selsdon Park (A. J. Lacey, plus 4, and W. K. Harland, 10), 4 down; Addington Palace (F. Robson, plus 4, and H. R. Frisby, 11), 4 down; Roehampton (G. Gadd, plus 4, and A. G. Lewis, 12), 5 down; North Downs (R. Parkes, plus 4, and L. C. Hawkes, 18), 8 down; Purley Downs (C. Johns, plus 4, and E. J. Tysoe, 14), 8 down; Pollards Hill (P. Cox, plus 4, and A. Hollington, 12), 8 down; 4 and A. Hollington, 12), 8 down; T. Woolley, 13), 9 down; Shirley Park (T. Trapp, plus 4, and E. Lane, 9), 10 down.

GOLF

THE GOVERNOR'S SHIELD

BRITISH GOLFERS AND THE GAME

THE OLDEST MEMBER LOOKS BACK: HIGH LIGHTS OF THE 1932 SEASON

The oldest member put his feet under the smokeroom table as I sank my 'flu-weakened body into a chair opposite him and rapped out a question—"Who were the outstanding players in British golf in the past season?" writes The Bulletin Golf Correspondent.

The answer was easy—"Gus Sarazen and Jack M'Lean," and I thought that I had escaped lightly, only to be brought up with a jerk with the barked monosyllable—"Why?" Here, for the moment at least, I was stumped, for I am afraid that I accepted the achievements of these dual champions very much without question.

But the Oldest Member eats, drinks, and sleeps golf, and happily situated financially, sees almost every golf shot of quality which is played by man, woman, or boy in the length and breadth of a season.

Negative and Positive.

He pointed out an amazing difference between Sarazen and M'Lean so far as the manner of their success was concerned. Wisely he made no attempt to compare them as shotmakers, for they are as different as steel from hickory, but what he did point out was that Sarazen's successes were, in a manner of speaking, negative successes, while M'Lean's were positive achievements.

That sounds paradoxical when we know just how much money Sarazen made out of winning both the British and the American Open Championships in the one year, but my friend is a purist, unaffected by considerations other than the paying of shots and the stringing together of those shots into a complete round or a succession of rounds.

Strength and Skill.

Sarazen played such miraculous golf to win the Open Championship at Prince's—he started with 70.60, and again 70 to shatter the opposition—because he knew that no matter where he put the ball from one of his bad shots he had the strength and skill to back it back not only to safety but to far-off greens, and then even to within hailing distance. In other words, Sarazen knew that he could "get off" with his bad shots, which is almost as important as playing superlatively good shots. In fact, it is more important.

A superb shot will save only one stroke, two perhaps if it is played at a very long hole and fetches up alongside the pin; but a poor shot may result in a lost ball, or a playable ball, or a ball at of bounds, with the almost inevitable loss of two strokes at least, and more perhaps if your nerve goes.

A bad shot can haunt you all through a round, but a superb shot does not retain its scar so long or inspire as much confidence as is sapped away by a "rank bad'un."

Hit Fewer Bad Shots.

Sarazen, however, was so magnificently fit that he knew that the chance of playing bad shots was remote, he had supreme confidence in his ability to recover without loss of stroke or sang froid. He knew, too, that he had all the shots.

M'Lean, on the other hand, won the Scottish and Irish Amateur Championships because he hit fewer bad shots than any other man in the field; and he knew that he would hit fewer bad shots than anyone else.

He knew that his drive might be 10 yards behind his opponent's, but he knew that his ball would be in the middle of the fairway. And he knew, too, that while his opponent might stick a long iron shot up against the flag, he himself would "place" his approach in the middle of the green, and the middle of the green is never very far away from the hole.

Naturally his putting was made easy, for it is no difficult task to get down in two putts from ball.

because of the manner of playing the actual shots, proof of which is adduced by his success in match, medal, and foursome play.

The oldest member sat back and prepared to demolish any criticism I might offer, but he convinced me of the soundness of his arguments, just as, later, he agreed with me that in some respects the season had been chaotic. There used to be a time when one British professional had his "year," but now no one can point to any particular player and say that, after Sarazen, he was the man of the hour.

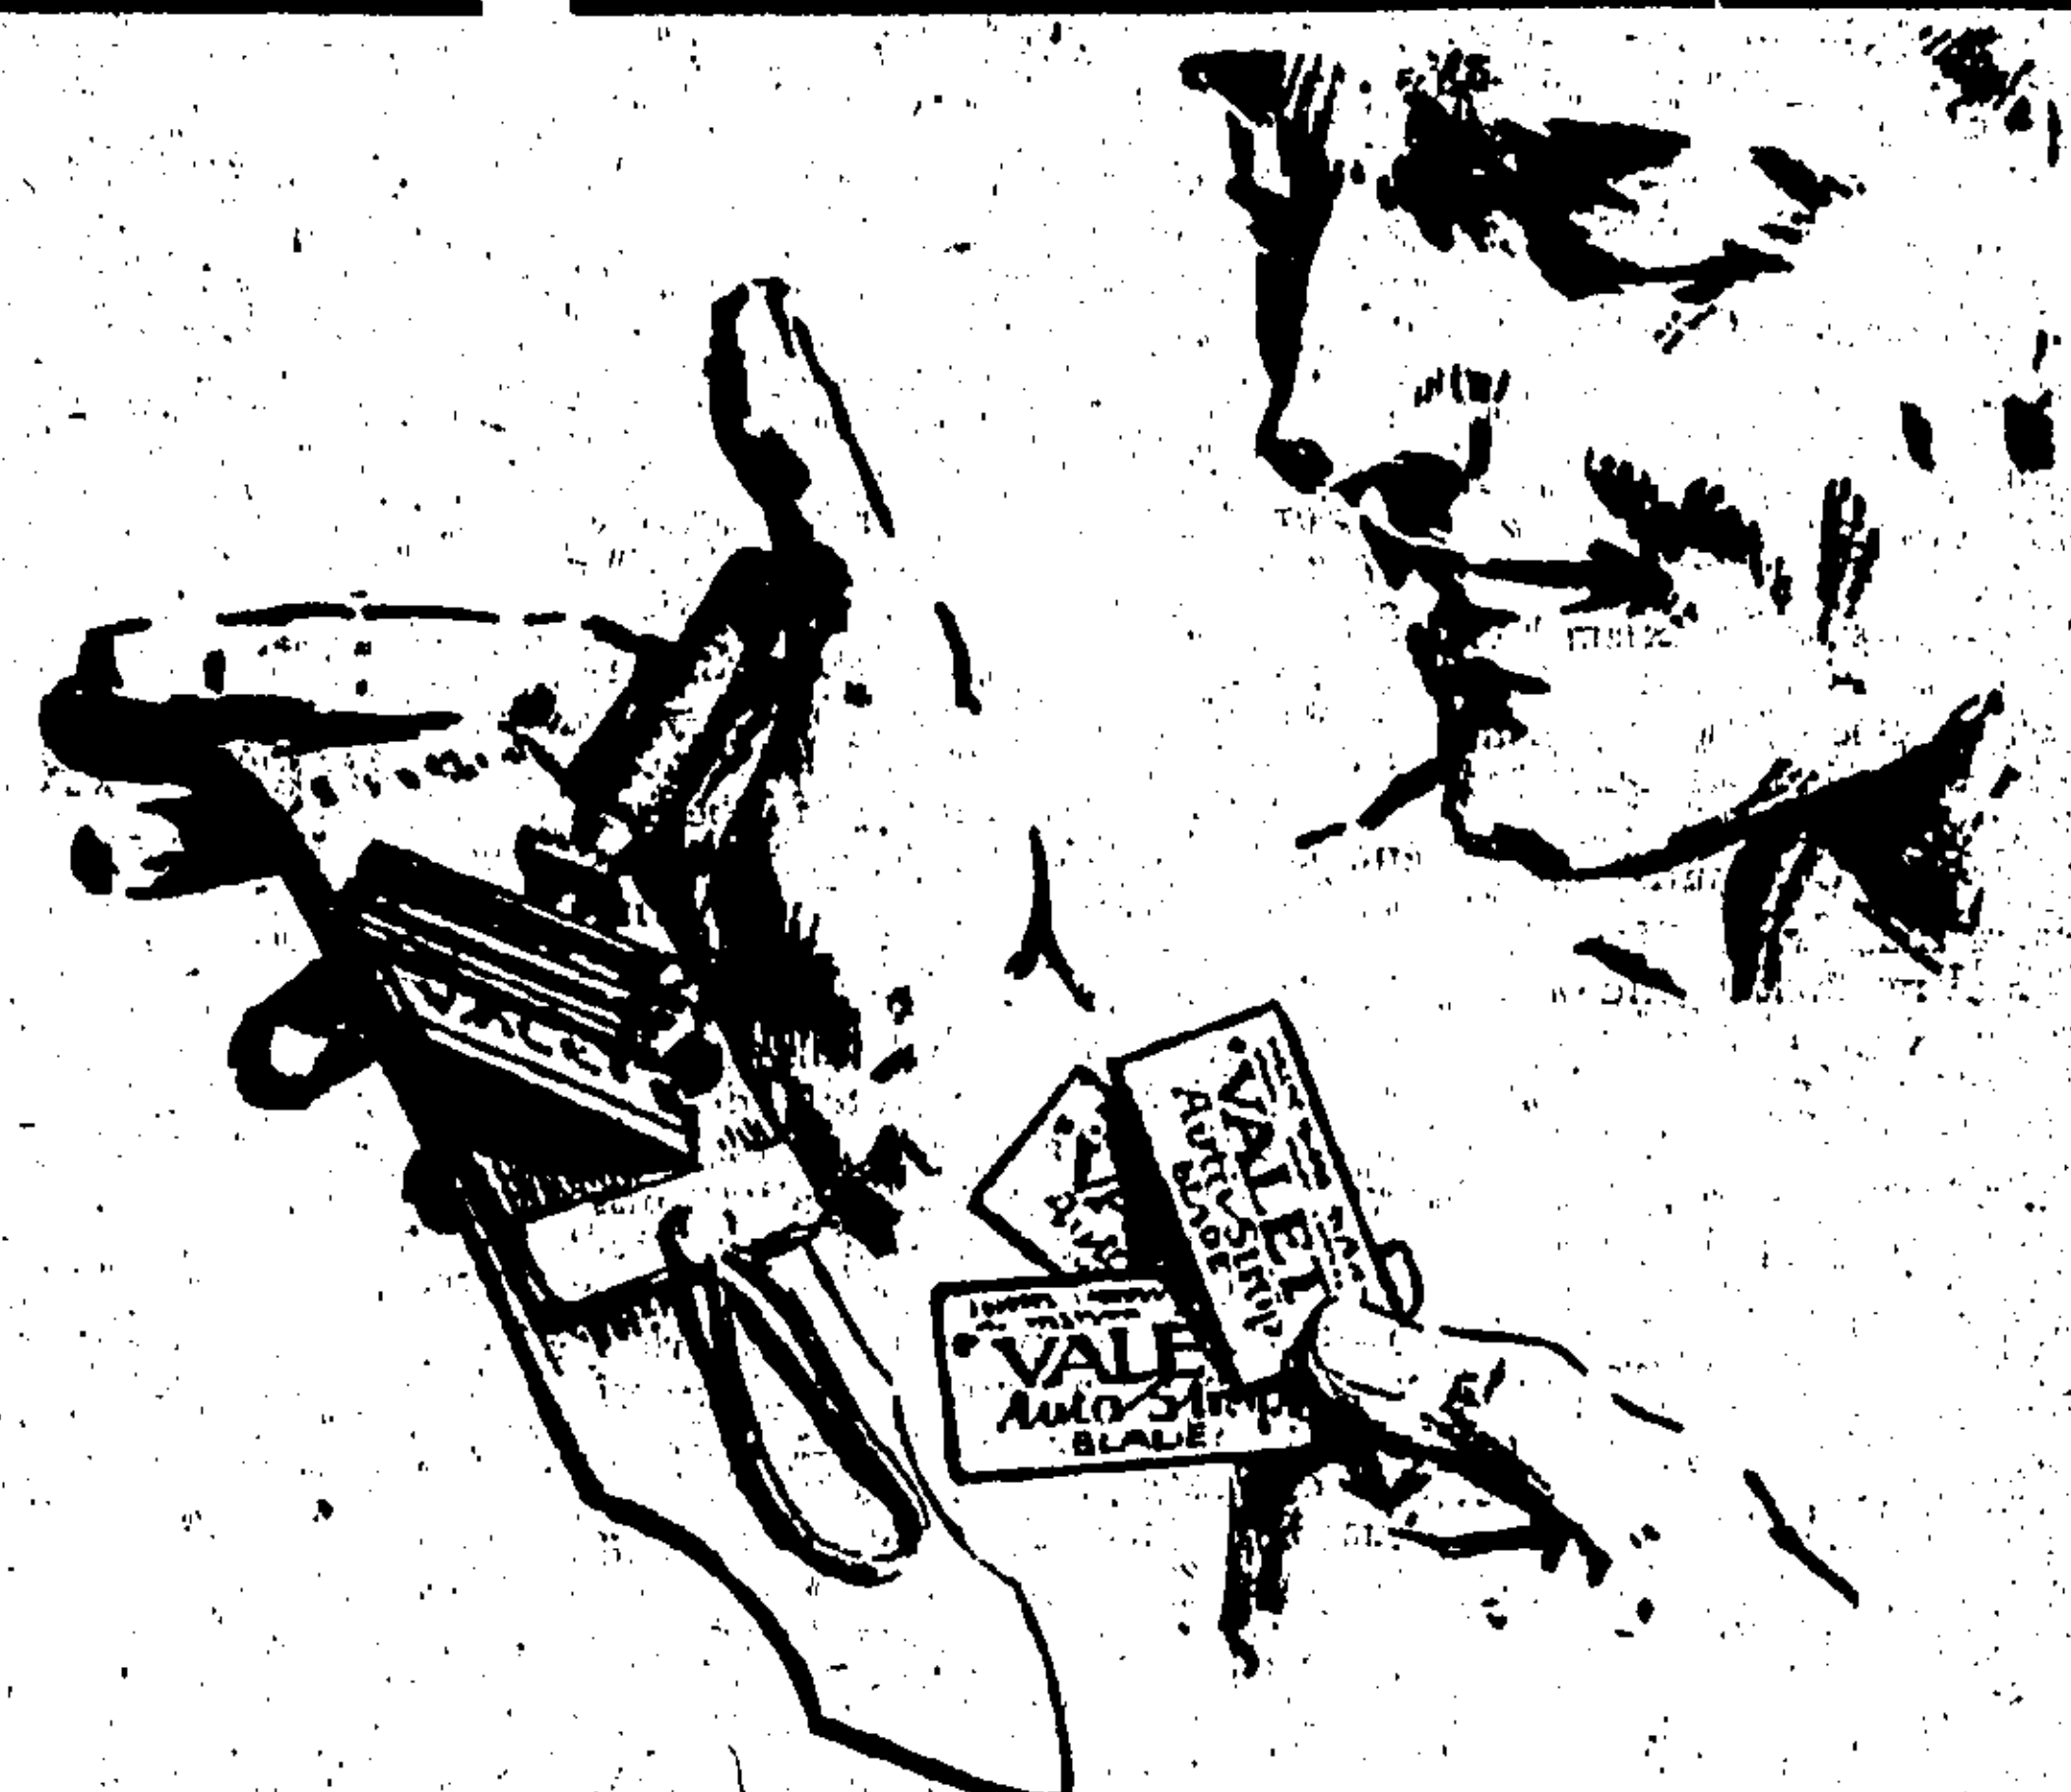

Cotton, Alliss, Padgham, and Havers—they all had their crowded hours of glorious golf, just as some amateurs like M'Luie, with his 60 in the qualifying round at Prince's, and Henry Howell, with his great week at Troon, had their deadly spells.

With the British professionals it is very much a question of "some say that we won and some say that they won." Let us hope that St. Andrews next year will throw up an individual golfer who will stand four square to all the foreign golfers, be they from France, U.S.A., or the Argentine. British golf sadly needs a figure-head.

For my own part I would not class the Amateur Championship as one of the high lights of the season. (Continued on Page 12.)

Derby Favourite Lame.

PRIMA DONNA MAY NOT START THIS YEAR

MR. SOARES' PONY "TUCKED UP"

READERS INTERESTED IN RACING WILL BE SORRY TO HEAR THAT ONE OF THE FAVOURITES FOR THE DERBY, PRIMA DONNA, IS NOT LIKELY TO START AT THE ANNUAL RACE MEETING THIS YEAR.

Rumours were current yesterday to the effect that the pony was lame and much disappointment was felt on all sides as many had looked upon Prima Donna as a likely winner this year.

A representative of the "Daily Press" interviewed Mr. A. M. L. Soares yesterday afternoon and the owner stated that the rumour was not without foundation. The pony was a bit "tucked up" at the moment but he would not definitely say it was lame. Dr. Watson was going to examine the pony, he said, and until he had had medical opinion, he would not say definitely what he would do with regard to the entry.

ident. Incidentally I am by no means sure that this type of bowling does mean that the ball pitches outside the leg stumps or at all events pitches more than an inch or so outside it. And I am quite sure that it does not mean six balls in succession bowled bang at the batsman.

What Next?

So far as the official side of it goes the matter is at an end but I am by no means easy in my mind as to what will happen in the Fourth Test match at the end of next week. The Australian crowd has always been apt to barrack beyond bounds and they seem harder to please than ever now. I see there was trouble in Tasmania because Jardine would not put on his fast bowlers on a very wet wicket on which it was impossible to obtain a foothold, and also objected to the condition of the pitch for play. The Captain of a tourist side has a big responsibility to shoulder and he cannot risk getting his best bowlers crooked unnecessarily, and I cannot suppose he ought to take that risk because people have paid a lib or two to see the game. If there is going to be very much more of this unpleasant barracking—we are told that in past years it was usually good-humoured—I imagine it will be a long time before an M.C.C. team tours Australia again. Meantime I suspect the majority of cricketers will wish the Australian success in finding a solution of the difficulty. The element of serious personal danger should not enter into cricket; however legal it may be. In passing, I wonder if the inclusion of Tobin, as well as Wall, in the Australian side means that they are going to play the test themselves?

The Australian side is a very strong one, and I am sure they will win the test. (Continued on Page 12.)

The Club are playing Hayward, Mitchell, Beck, Duckitt, Dunkley, Harvey, Owen Hughes, Martin, Monro, T. A. Pearce and Alan Reid which at the present time, with Witham playing Rugger, is just about a strong side as they can turn out. They ought to win pretty easily but I am by no means sure they will do so. Their bowling depends so much on whether Reid is on or off his length. Off it, he is a menace. On it he might run through any side here. But if he is off form, Beck has only Duckitt and Owen Hughes to support him. The batting too is somewhat liable to collapse though in Monro they have a very quick-scoring batsman. The Indians are very consistent: all through and with Pereira and Minn in form they are a dangerous side. I always suspect them however of developing rather an inferiority complex on the Club ground. I may be wrong. But it should be a most excellent game to watch.

The Navy are at home to the University—if the latter team ever complete their lengthy journey before dark sets in! I rather fancy the visitors will win comfortably. At the Valley an extremely depleted Civil Service team receives the K.O.C. and cricket being what it is will either be out for under fifty or make a draw of it. The first is somewhat more probable.

A Point of the Rules.

I happened to be umpiring in a match the other day and queried the width of the bowling crease. It turned out to be ten feet wide, with return creases sloping outwards. The rule is, of course, that it should be eight feet eight inches in width with the stumps pitched in the middle. It is fortunate it is so phrased as the question of the smaller of the larger wicket makes no difference. It is also laid down that the return creases must be

EMPIRE CONTENT

DIFFICULT POINT IN EMPIRE PREFERENCE

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Jan. 11.—The words "Empire content" do not mean the contentment of the Empire, but refer to the difficult problem, which was too much for the Ottawa Conference, of fixing the proportion of Empire raw material and labour necessary to qualify goods to secure the benefit of Imperial preferential tariffs, says the Manchester Guardian. It is of the greatest importance to our manufacturers that there should be a definite decision on this matter covering the entry of imports from the Dominions. At Ottawa a large and important group of trade experts, representing such divergent industries as cotton textiles and chemicals, was formed to advise the Conference. This committee recommended the uniform adoption throughout the Empire of a definition of goods qualifying for preference as those goods of which the "Empire content" is 75 per cent. of the total cost, excluding certain raw and partly prepared materials from the calculation.

Nothing was done about it at Ottawa, and at present this thorny question is being carefully reviewed by the Government. At Ottawa the industrialists insisted that the preparation of the lists of the materials to be excluded from the cost—this is the crux of the matter—should be made after consultation with the industries concerned. The Federation of British Industries has now pressed on the Government the view that, while it might be to the general advantage if the Government were to fix the percentage figure, each industry should be treated on its own merits, and the requirements and position of each should be the decisive factor. "It is agreed that if and when 'Empire content' is fixed the percentage must apply to British goods going to the Dominions and colonies in the same way as it will affect import from the Empire."

ROYAL AIR FORCE

RE-EQUIPMENT PROGRESS

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Jan. 17.—New aircraft have recently been supplied to two home squadrons, and to six flights of the Fleet Air Arm, according to a summary issued yesterday by the Air Ministry.

No. 10 (Bomber) Squadron at Boscombe Down has received Virginia machines in place of Hindas, and No. 50 (Fighter) Squadron at North Weald has exchanged its Siskin IIIA machines for Bulldogs. The Fleet Air Arm flights concerned are Nos. 402 and 404, in the Courageous, which have received Nimrod and Osprey machines in place of Flycatchers; a half flight of No. 405 (which is later to go to China for the 5th Cruiser Squadron), and has also received Ospreys instead of Flycatchers; No. 407, allocated to the 2nd Cruiser Squadron, Home Fleet, which now has Ospreys instead of Flycatchers; and the newly-formed No. 400 (Fighter Reconnaissance) Flight, hitherto at Gosport, but which is to be embarked in the Glorious for the Mediterranean, with Nimrod and Osprey machines.

The re-equipment has begun of No. 47 (Bomber) Squadron at Khartoum with Gordon aircraft instead of IITF general purpose machines; and of No. 100 (Bomber) Squadron at Donibristle. Five, with Vildebeeste torpedo bombers instead of Hurricanes. During the next few months, the College at Cranwell will receive Tutor training machines instead of the 504 N type; Nos. 601, 602, and 603 (Bomber) Squadrons will relinquish their Walrus, the first named for the Wallace type and the others two for Harrier; Nos. 448 and 449 flights in H.M.S. Porpoise will exchange their present Fairy VIIe machines for Seals (IITF with Panther engines); and at Calicut Base, new flying boats of the Cloud type will replace Southamptons.

A NEGLECTED cough or cold does serious mischief to the delicate bronchial tubes and lungs. It often ends up in an attack of bronchitis, asthma, or other stubborn chest complaint. Don't run needless risks! Take Peps breatheable tablets at the first sign of a cold or chill and ward off worse dangers.

When dissolved in the mouth Peps give off powerful healing and germicidal fumes which are breathed direct into the lungs. Peps soothe the throat and heal the inflamed linings of the air-passages. They destroy flu germs, loosen phlegm, and banish coughs and colds.

PEPS are a handy preventive and remedy for sore throat, laryngitis, catarrh, emphysema, cough, night chills, etc. Of all medicine dealers.

At one time it promised to be a magnificent week for Scotland, with five Scots in the last eight, but by the Friday afternoon they were a "wode awn" and two Englishmen were left to struggle through the final.

A better week, it was generally agreed, was the first International Week at Troon, when Scotland most gloriously won the championship of the four countries. There was more good golf played then than in the last two Amateur Championships there were many authentic "cages" of players being round in a shade over level 4's and losing a few holes from home. And there were valiant victories when players came "from behind"—as many as five holes in one case were recovered—and snatched valuable points for their country.

That Superiority Complex.

The International Week demonstrated more than the cut and thrust of championships that certain players—Henry Howell, of Wales, and H. E. Dawson, of Scotland, in particular—had the nerves and the temperament for the big occasion. It is one thing to hole a 10-foot putt when your existence in a championship is hanging in the balance; it is a vastly more exacting ordeal to do so when you know that the fate of the whole encounter between your country and another is dependent on your efforts.

Scotland's initial success in the series should help to inculcate in her amateur golfers that superiority complex the possession of which is worth a couple of holes of a start on an opponent not so equipped mentally. Our golfers are better than England's best—when they remember that they will win the Amateur Championship again.

LADY MARGARET HALL, OXFORD

DEDICATION OF NEW CHAPEL

(Special Air-Mail Service)

Oxford.—The most striking addition to Oxford's architectural treasures since the completion of Rhodes House, the new chapel of Lady Margaret Hall, together with a number of other buildings just completed, was dedicated to-day by Bishop Edward Talbot, the founder of the Hall. He was assisted by the Bishop of Oxford, who was accompanied by the chaplain, the Rev. F. T. Hutchins, and other clergy.

Sir Giles Gilbert Scott is the designer of the chapel. Its distinguishing feature is the central dome, which is twelve-sided. All the interior woodwork of the chapel is of oak. A recumbent figure of Lady Margaret has been given a place in the north transept, and is a cast of the original figure in Westminster Abbey. There is accommodation for about 300.

The chapel has been built almost entirely from money given by old students of the Hall. Amongst the company of 400 present this afternoon were 150 former students.

The principal, Miss Lynda Grier, and members of the Council, met the Bishop in the anti-chapel, where the chairman of the Council presented the petition for dedication. The inner doors were then opened, and the Fellows and Council presented their several petitions. An anthem, "The earth is the Lord's," specially composed for the occasion by Dr. Ernest Walker, was sung by the choir under the conductorship of Miss Margaret Doneke, the choirmaster.

Those present at the ceremony included the Vice-Chancellor and Mrs. Lys, the proctors, the heads of colleges, Sir Giles Scott and Lady Scott, and former members of the Council.

NEW SUBMARINE LEAVES FOR CHINA STATION

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Jan. 17.

The new submarine Rainbow was cheered by naval ratings at Portsmouth submarine depot and by civilians on the sea front when she set out yesterday to take up her post with the China Station. The submarine was built to replace the ill-fated Poseidon, in which 19 lives were lost at Weihaiwei in 1931.

H.M.S. Rainbow's commander is Lieutenant-Commander T. Yeoman. The submarine is due at Hong Kong on March 10 after a voyage of about 10,000 miles which she will make unescorted. The Rainbow, which is of 1475 tons surface displacement and over 2,000 tons submerged displacement, mounts one four-inch gun and eight torpedo tubes. Her surface speed is approximately 17 knots, with a submerged speed of 10 knots.

PATRIOTISM THAT FAVOURS THE POCKET

It is, of course, patriotic to "buy British" in any case.

But to purchase a British product that is not only CHEAPER—but MORE EFFICIENT than the corresponding imported article, is to combine patriotism with economy.

Which is only another way of saying

INSTALL IMPERIALS for ALL-ROUND EFFICIENCY.

BRITISH RIGHT THROUGH

BRAINS DESIGN LABOUR CAPITAL MATERIALS

The "Imperial" is designed and made in England by people who understand English requirements. Foreign-made typewriters, imported from countries using the metric system, lack such typically English signs as "1". The "Imperial" keyboard has six extra characters—just those symbols which the English typist has always needed but never possessed.

In construction, the "Imperial" is a "sound British engineering job"—with all that the phrase implies.
